HALT EXECUTION OF MADEIROS, SACCO COUNSEL ASKS FULLER

OLD STORY BY MRS. YOUNG

Mrs. Dorothy R. Campbell who is opposing the divorce action of Courtland H. Young, magazine publisher, had her lawyer show her two children to the judge in Paterson, N. J., court, in an attempt to prove their resemblance. Her husband claims he is not the father of the little boy. Mrs. Young was in the Follies.

NINE JURORS CHOSEN TO TRY 'LOVE SLAYERS' IN LONG ISLAND TRAGEDY

Long Island City, N. Y., April 23.—Mrs. Ruth Snyder gave way to tears today for the first time since she went on trial here charged with aiding Henry Judd Gray, her ex-suitor, in the murder of Albert Snyder, her art-editor husband.

The sobs of the blonde defendant came at a dramatic moment in the trial and just after the ninth juror in the case had been chosen.

It was the entrance of Mrs. Josephine Brown, grief-stricken mother of the accused wife, that marked Mrs. Snyder's sudden outburst of tears—sobs that rang through the crowded courtroom and brought a mist before the eyes of many others in the hushed tribunal.

The mother of the defendant, sad-eyed and weary, came into the courtroom just as a funeral band, passing in the streets below, began playing the strains of "Nearer, My God, to Thee."

Attorneys who were monotonously questioning talesmen in the difficult task of trying to get a jury halted their questioning for a moment or two.

A sudden stillness came over the courtroom. It was abruptly broken by the pathetic sobs of Mrs. Snyder

GIRL PREFERS LEAVING U. S. TO WALTHAM JAIL

Olive Coleman's welcome to the United States was worn this today—so thin, in fact, that she was ordered out of the country with the alternative of spending many, many days in a nice cool jail.

Olive, who is only 19 years old and who has been visiting friends in Maple terrace, Waltham, agreed to go back to Nova Scotia, which is not wet but which is next door to New Brunswick, the Province that just went wet.

The girl was arrested early yesterday in close proximity to an automobile and a tree at Adams and Orange streets, Waltham. It has hard telling whether Olive was near the auto or the tree, because the former was wrapped around the latter in a very rakish way.

In Waltham Court today Judge Hannon pressed a thirty-day sentence on the comely girl and told her that she could either get out of the country and go back to Nova Scotia, or serve the sentence for drunken driving.

Olive figured the old home town to have something on a Bay State jail and she agreed to be across the border by May 19.

According to testimony, the girl drove off an automobile of a friend when the friend went into a Waltham store. She had no license, but this charge was filed.

COOLIDGE ASKS AID FOR 100,000 IN BIG FLOOD

Three naval planes were ordered today from the Pensacola naval station to Little Rock, Ark., to render aid in rescuing stranded refugees in the flooded areas.

President Coolidge today issued a proclamation asking aid for Mississippi River flood sufferers.

President named four Cabinet members to co-operate with the Red Cross.

Famine and pestilence threatened thousands of refugees as the Mississippi River continued to break flood records.

Near-freezing temperatures through the upper valley added to the sufferings of the approximately 100,000 who have been driven from their homes.

A dispatch to the Red Cross said a refugee camp at Blaysville, Ark., holding a thousand refugees in an area of a square mile, was threatened with inundation. The water was within a foot of the camps and still rising. Other camps are menaced.

Scores of lives are believed to have been lost inwaters sweeping across the Mississippi delta from a break in the levee near Scott Landing yesterday.

GIRL, 13, KIDNAPED BY PAIR, SHE TELLS POLICE

Telling of being kidnaped by two strange men in an auto, Dorothy McQueeney, 13, of Harvard street, Cambridge, was picked up by Worcester police today, a few hours after she was reported missing.

The girl was turned over to an aunt who lives in that city after Cambridge police, who were searching for her, had been notified.

According to her story to police the two men picked her up and after placing a handkerchief over her face spirited her away to Worcester in their auto. She left home last night to do an errand and when she did not return her mother reported her disappearance.

THOMPSON MOVES TO SAVE MADEIROS FOR SACCO CASE REVIEW

A move was made today to obtain another respite for Celestino Madeiros, slayer of a Wrentham bank cashier, who is in the death house at Charlestown State Prison, awaiting execution sometime after next Wednesday, when his present respite expires.

Attorney William G. Thompson, counsel for Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti, today in a letter requested Governor Fuller to again intervene and delay the execution of the New Bedford man, that his testimony may be obtained, should the Governor re-open the Sacco-Vanzetti case.

Thompson's move to prolong the life of Madeiros was taken without the latter's knowledge. Madeiros, apparently, is calmly awaiting execution, conferring only with his spiritual advisor, Rev. Father Murphy, prison chaplain.

Governor Fuller has twice granted respites to Madeiros because of the "confession" Madeiros made, while in the Dedham Jail, that he was a member of the gang that murdered Paymaster Parmenter and his guard at South Braintree seven years ago and that Sacco and Vanzetti were not members of the gang and knew nothing of the crime.

It is for this crime that Sacco and Vanzetti are under sentence to

3 HURT IN BRIGHTON CRASH, DRIVER HELD

Three men were injured in a head-on collision between a taxicab and a coupe on Commonwealth avenue, near Lake street, Brighton, early today.

Peter L. Kenney, of No. 868 Colthe taxicab, Roxbury, driver of his taxicab, is in St. Elizabeth's Hospital suffering from severe lacerations. Elisha Barnes of Hotel Touraine, a passenger in the coupe, is also in St. Elizabeth's Hospital with a broken tendon.

Harold A. Kirk of New York, driver of the coupe, was arrested after the crash. He declined medical attention for bruises.

In Brighton Court Kirk pleaded not guilty to operating an auto while under the influence of liquor. The case was continued to May 6 and he gave $500 bail.

10 YEARS FOR MOTHER WHO KILLED DAUGHTER

Freehold, N. J., April 22 (A.P.)—Mrs. Christine Stoble, mother of ten children, today was found guilty of manslaughter for the slaying of her sixteen-year-old daughter Rosa, Justice Lloyd sentenced her to ten years in State prison.

The verdict came soon after the jury, which deliberated for nineteen hours, returned and asked Justice Lloyd for instructions as to the necessary proof of insanity. One woman and 11 men composed the jury.

The defense had contended Mrs. Stoble was emotionally insane after she saw her unwed daughter with a new-born babe.

The woman testified "everything went dark" when she found the two in the basement of the Stoble home at Red Bank.

"The law says a person is sane until a preponderance of evidence proves them otherwise," Justice Lloyd replied to the question put by Earl Snyder, forman of the jury. "This crime is one of the most atrocious that ever came to my at-

The conductor is W. D. Vanbergen, as able, active and keen a railroad man as ever protected a fast express train.

"Railroading" more than 50 years, he talks of passenger cars that were 40 feet long, had seats that hit you in the middle of the back, windows with four small panes of glass in each, lighted with candles.

FISHING BAN STILL ON; UNAFFECTED BY RAIN

The State-wide ban against fishing in the woods was continued in force today in spite of the rain which extinguished all forest fires within the Massachusetts boundaries.

Hopes of fishermen, raised by the rain, were dashed when Commissioner of Conservation William A. L. Bazeley announced that the fishing ban could not be lifted because no more rain is in sight.

The Commissioner, having consulted his deputies, was about to advise Governor Fuller to lift the ban when he received notification from Blue Hills observatory of fair weather and high winds in the offing.

All forest fires in Massachusetts were out today for the first time in two weeks and thousands of firefighters got their first real rest in that period, many of them going home exhausted.

Pink Freshness Wilts as Day ~ Wanes and Nell Brinkley ~ Catches 'Love's Vitrolic Glare'

RUTH SNYDER AT THE BAR OF JUSTICE
Nell Brinkley, the artist, has caught an unusual likeness of Mrs. Snyder here in all of her pink freshness.

BUT THAT TIRED LOOK COMES
Her general demeanor shows the strain under which she fights for composure as the day drags out in court.

ONCE 'TWAS LOVE, BUT NOW IT IS HATE—HER GLANCE

JUDGE DETERMINED TO FILL SNYDER JURY TODAY

as she turned to meet her mother's sad, pitying face. It was the mother's first appearance in court since the trial started.

The eighth and ninth jurors were chosen today after many talesmen had been examined and excused for various reasons, chiefly because they are opposed to capital punishment.

While Mrs. Snyder wept, Gray, the co-defendant, shifted in his chair and threw one arm over the back of it. His eyes did not leave the talesmen, however.

Mrs. Margaret Gray, his mother, closed her eyes a moment, but otherwise gave little sign of hearing the solemn strains of the death march.

Shortly after the procession passed the attorneys resumed questioning of talesmen and the eighth juror was accepted.

He was Louis Ruckdaschel, employment manager, of College Point. He was the two hundred and ninth talesman questioned. He is a widower, 47 years old, with two children, a boy seven and a girl seven.

PRESSING UP WORK.

The ninth juror is Everett Vanfleet, 48, secretary of a manufacturing concern.

At opening of court today Judge Townsend Scudder, presiding, declared that every effort must be made to complete the jury before court adjourned tonight. He said he wanted to be sure the case could proceed Monday with the hearing of opening arguments. Seven jurors had been seated up until today's session began.

There was a new panel of 150 talesmen on hand when the long-drawn-out process of filling the jury box was resumed with reopening of court today. Thus far 250 talesmen have been examined.

Gray's lawyers indicated he will throw the blame on the woman, saying she dominated him and forced him to beat her husband to death.

The State, it is said, will produce a witness who actually saw Gray hand Mrs. Snyder, two weeks before Snyder's death, the sashweight with which the husband was bludgeoned. The prosecution will seek to prove that the crime was long premeditated and deliberately carried out.

It is predicted that the trial will last three weeks, perhaps longer, if Mrs. Snyder takes the stand. She has indicated, however, that she will not.

Mrs. Snyder, dressed in black, as usual, came into court today just as the judge's gavel was descending upon his desk.

Gray followed quickly. He seemed cheerful and shook hands with his lawyers. Mrs. Snyder was a little paler than usual.

Twelve new talesmen were sworn in and questioning of them was begun at once.

Justice Scudder warned the first twelve of the new panel of the 150 talesmen summoned for questioning that talesmen excused would not be relieved from jury duty the next term of court.

JUDGE IS ANNOYED.

Leaning over in his seat, the judge took a hand in questioning the first batch of twelve.

"Have any of you conscientious scruples against capital punishment?" he asked them collectively. "If so you will please raise your hands."

Five hands went up.

The judge looked annoyed. Conscientious objections to the death penalty has been a common excuse.

"How long have you entertained such scruples?"

One by one they said "for a long time" or "all my life."

The judge finally excused them.

After half a dozen men had failed to qualify came the questioning of the first man who wouldn't send a woman to the electric chair. He was Sam Schnitzer, of Far Rockaway.

"Would the fact that one of the defendants is a woman prevent you from returning a first degree verdict in the event the evidence convinced you she was guilty?" he was asked.

"Yes," he replied.

He was excused.

Edward R. Barton, young automobile salesman of Queens Village, almost got by. He answered questions in a straightforward manner and finally was accepted by both defense counsels. But, after lawyers for the people put their heads together he was told:

"Peremptorily challenged by the State."

There was much comment by those following the trial today on the news that the man who wrote the $50,000 double indemnity insurance on the life of Albert Snyder had been dismissed by his company, and that he would be a witness next week in the case.

The list of distinguished visitors at the trial is growing daily. Natacha Rambova arrived today to write her impressions for a newspaper. Ex-Senator Nelson of Minnesota and Mrs. Nelson also arrived with friends.

Thin men appear to be exempted from duty on the Snyder jury, according to the above photograph, taken shortly after court adjourned after the fifth juror had been chosen. HUNDREDS LEFT OUT IN COLD ON PAY RAISES

Gloom settled over city departments when the City Council, after perusing Mayor Nichol's appropriation measure, disclosed that 400 clerks and stenographers, together with high fire and police officials, all of whom have been "gunning" for increases, have been utterly ignored.

Neither will city laborers receive an increase this year. Of 15,000 city employes, 2,106 will get increases. In addition, 334 fire privates and 704 patrolmen will get the usual raises in accordance with the established sliding scale.

Approximately $150,000 is allotted for salary and wage increases in the Mayor's measure, the smallest allotment for this purpose since 1921, the first year of the second Curley administration.

The biggest plum goes to Walter Foley, promoted from paymaster to assistant cashier in the City Treasurer's Department, who gets an advance from $2900 to $3300.

Two hundred clerks and stenographers get increases of $100 each, and 105 nurses are advanced a like amount, from $1600 to $1700. Several supervising officers in the Building Department are increased $200 a year, and in the Chief Engineer's office there are several raises, averaging $300 each.

One man is reported dying from stab wounds and several others were hurt during a fight between rival gangs of the West End, which took place on Spring street, near Chambers street. Flood Disasters Due to Rain of Last August

Washington, April 22 (A.P.).—Floods sweeping throughout the Mississippi River Valley had their origin in rains that fell about eight months ago, in the opinion of Harry C. Frankenfield of the government weather bureau.

Frankenfield, the government's leading authority on floods, declared the flood conditions began last August, when rains were general over the central portion of the country and began filling the watersheds contributory to the Mississippi system.

These rains continued with more or less regularity until October.

CLEARY BILL VETO IS SUSTAINED IN COURT

Refusing to follow the action of the House in voting to override Governor Fuller's veto of the bill reinstating David M. Cleary as a member of the Boston Fire Department, the Senate today sustained the chief executive by a vote of 21 to 13, thus killing the measure.

That Cleary was on duty at the time he left the station, for which reason he was discharged, was denied by Senator Daniel A. Martin of Holyoke.

"The facts bear out the contention that he was discharged for cause and that the Governor should be sustained," Senator Gasper C. Bacon asserted.

White Plains, N. Y., April 22 (A.P.).—Edmund G. Day, 32, arrested in Gulfport, Miss., a month ago on charges of attempting to obtain money from Edsel Ford, today pleaded guilty to larceny of $496 from Stanley G. Budd, Peekskill, N. Y.

COURT AND JURY VISIT INVALIDS IN THEFT CASE

For probably the first time in the history of Middlesex County Superior Court, judge, jury, clerk, defendant and counsel moved into Norfolk County for a bedside session in the case of James H. Handren, male nurse, charged with larceny from a patient's home.

The entire court went to the home of Mrs. Carrie E. Atteaux, No. 240 Newton street, Brookline, in order to get the invalid woman's testimony. She testified two dolls, found in the possession of Handren when arrested, had been made by her and given to Mrs. Arthur Whitney of Watertown, from whom Handren is alleged to have stolen them.

Wrapped in a shawl and blankets, the invalid gave her testimony after Clerk of Court Frederick A. Bean administered the oath on the family Bible. Gathered around, counsel for prosecution and defense asked her questions while the 12 jurors stood about.

From her home the court moved to the Whitney mansion in Watertown where another invalid, Charles Whitney was prepared to give his testimony against the man who was his nurse. It is charged Handren stole valuable art pieces and antiques from the Whitney home.

Atty. Timothy J. Callahan, defending Handren, indicated he would attack the unusual court proceeding in his cross-examination of Mrs. Atteaux.

FLIERS IN LAST TESTS FOR LONG U. S.-PARIS HOP

New York, April 22 (A.P.)—Four carefully guarded airplanes, like lone thoroughbreds before a barrier, jockeyed today in flying fields in America and France, undergoing final priming before they hop off on their projected 3,600 flight across the Atlantic.

As daily tests brought the machines nearer perfection a start by two of the planes seemed possible at any time within the next few days.

The Bellanca monoplane, which recently set a new world endurance record, was reported to be ready to start as soon as it was loaded, while advices from Paris said Captain Charles Nungesser, famous French flier, was awaiting only favorable weather.

The Bellanca plane is undergoing final tests at Curtis Field, L. I., after being equipped with every accessory for a long cruise. Food and gasoline requirements already have been estimated.

Meanwhile Commander Noel Davis at Langley Field, Va., is conducting daily tests with his plane, "American Legion," experimenting with wood and metal propellors in the attempt to ascertain which will provide the greater speed with the least consumption of fuel.

While the American teams pushed preparations, Captain Nungesser and M. Drouhin, formerly one of the holders of the endurance record, carried on their work preliminary to projected flights from Paris to New York.

Drouhin's preparations have been made in secret and it is not known how near he may be to a starting date. Nungesser is watching final bench tests of the motor which will be used in his flight.

HUB SHIPPING IS HAMPERED BY HEAVY FOG

Hanging like a smothering damp blanket, a heavy fog today stagnated shipping for many hours, forced down anchors of coastwise boats, gave ferry pilots one of their tense and worried days—and even ashore cut down the speed of motor cars and made headlights necessary.

Coming in on the last drips of the early morning rain, the fog closed down over almost the whole Bay State coast line and worked inland for a considerable distance.

The New York-Boston steamer service that resumed only last week was smothered somewhat in the fog, the steamship Boston being held up on her run from Gotham and being delayed several hours.

Also was the freighter Norwalk, bound from New York, delayed in her trip.

A number of coal barges running light out of Boston and heavy up from Norfolk were anchored in the fog along a water stretch with its eastern end beyond Highland Light, all waiting for the fog to lift.

Ferry boats plied the harbor at half speed with fog horns and whistles blaring and shrieking constant warnings.

It was described as the heaviest fog this year.

The passengers were Philomena Zaccaro, 20, of Wyman street; her four-year-old son Richard, and Nancy Chase, 24, of North Warren avenue, all Brockton. They, with Victor, were treated for cuts and bruises by a nearby doctor and then went home in a taxi.

Borgiale said he applied his brakes too quickly in attempting to avoid a woman, who darted across Blue Hill avenue at Paxton street to board a trolley.

NOVEL FEATURE IN "3 HOURS"

Corinne Griffith's latest picture, "Three Hours," which opens at the Washington street Olympia, Scollay Square, and Central Square, Cambridge, next Sunday, has many unusual weather effects. One sequence of the picture, which is laid in San Francisco, calls for one of those heavy mists which occur every so often, rivaling those of London, but which Californians are careful to keep quiet about. It was found impractical to move the whole outfit to the western city and as it is well nigh impossible to obtain photographic qualities in a real fog, an artificial fog was made which proved to be far better than the genuine.

A street with modern homes and stores were built, an exact duplicate of the street in San Francisco where the action was supposed to take place. Then fully one-third of the huge Metropolitan Studios, in which the street was built, was incased entirely in canvas. To get the fog effect several thousand gallons of oil were sprayed into the enclosure during the taking of the scenes.

Despite the discomforture of the players, the crew worked long hours each day for nearly a week in the oil.

Dr. J. A. King Dies

Woonsocket, R. I., April 22 (A. P.).—Dr. James Aldrich King, one of this city's best known physicians and surgeons, died today after an illness of three and a half years following a paralytic shock. Dr. King was born in Millville, Mass., Nov. 16, 1881.

FINANCIER SAYS RUSSIA NEEDS U. S. MONEY

Philadelphia, April 22 (A.P.).—Asserting communism was preached, but not practiced in Russia, William S. Wasserman, Philadelphia representative of Dillon, Read & Company, told the American Academy of Political and Social Science today American capital eventually would return to Russia "because the need is so great it cannot be denied."

The general topic of the meeting was "Some Outstanding Problems of American Foreign Policy," discussion today being devoted to "The United States and Russia." Speakers included Pierrepont B. Noyes, Oneida, N. Y.; Dr. Jerome Davis, Yale, and Alexander Petrunkevitch, also of Yale.

ONLY A "RELIGION."

Mr. Wasserman, who spent three months in Russia, recommended the United States send a commission there to discuss recognition with the Soviet government.

He said a majority of the Russian people "preferred the Soviet government to Czarism," and added:

"There is communism today in Russia, but it is the religion of communism rather than the practice of communism that exists there. Like every other religion, communism is preached, but not practiced.

SEES RECOGNITION INJURY.

"I think we are facing a situation in regard to Russia in which there must be a certain amount of give and take on both sides. For our part, we must drop that 'holier than thou' attitude and be satisfied with results. Soviet Russia must learn that to deal with the world there are certain fundamental obligations which must be adhered to."

Mr. Noyes and Dr. Davis also urged recognition by this country of the Russian government. Dr. Petrunkevitch asserted that everything pointed to the conclusion that such recognition "would be of benefit only to the Soviet government and might cause injury to American interests."

Not With Singer Company

New York, April 22.—C. C. Foster, secretary of the Singer Manufacturing Company, announced today that Paris E. Singer, who is reported to have been engaged in real estate operations in Florida, is not now and never has been actively connected with the company or any of its subsidiaries.

WINTHROP HEAD OF CEMETERY BOARD FIRED

As a result of what is understood to have been a long investigation into alleged irregularities in his department, Charles R. Bennison, prominent Winthrop undertaker, was dismissed today as superintendent of cemeteries in Winthrop.

George F. Paine, for thirteen years superintendent of streets in the town, was apointed to succeed Bennison, who had held the post for many years.

The dismissal notice was contained in a letter sent to Bennison by the Winthrop Board of Cemetery Commissioners composed of Henry Hutchinson, chairman; Everett Colupy and Edward A. Thomas.

When Commissioner Colupy was seen today about the dismissal, he refused to give any reason for the ousting except to admit that a long investigation had preceded the board's action.

Winthrop residents professed to understand also today that four other members of the cemetery department have been given dismissal notices, but no official would confirm this.

INDIGESTION DELAYS DETROIT LIBEL SUIT

Illness of noted attorney causes adjournment of Million Dollar Damage Case

The newspapers all over the country carried on Monday, April 18th, an Associated Press story stating that an attack of acute indigestion had caused the adjournment of the million dollar libel suit being tried in Detroit.

This is a striking example of the unexpected entanglements with which indigestion may attack and the serious interruption it can cause to business or social activities.

We have never known a single case where BELL-ANS promptly and properly taken has failed to relieve any indigestion however painful or severe. Thousands keep a bottle always on hand to avoid just such attacks.

The Adventures of Oliver Twist — By Charles Dickens

FOLLOWING the unsuccessful attempt at burglary, Bill Sikes left Oliver for dead in a ditch. Next morning he recovered consciousness and made his way to the nearest house, which was the very one his evil companions had tried to rob.

THE owner, Mrs. Maylie, and her adopted niece, Rose, took pity on the wounded boy. They cared for him and determined to punish Fagin. One day Oliver saw the sinister faces of Fagin and the mysterious man, Monks, at the window.

SOON after, Rose Maylie went to London, taking Oliver. One night Nancy, Fagin's protege, met her and Mr. Brownlow. She said her conscience forced her to tell that Fagin had been bribed by Monks to educate Oliver to thieving.

NANCY had explained that Monks had destroyed proofs of Oliver's identity, but one of Fagin's spies told his master of her act. Bill Sikes in a fury killed the girl and escaped. Fagin was arrested. (Continued Tomorrow).

BATH IN HUB RESERVOIR COSTS $100 AND ARREST

Noble Spangler, who comes from the great open spaces near Horton, Kan., where men are men and maybe they don't object to bathing in reservoirs did that thing out at Chestnut Hill at a cost of $100—and we - brighton Court for it today.

Noble, in complaining that $100 was stolen from him, said it was filched while he was slightly under the weather and was cooling off in the big drinking supply pond near Boston College.

As a result of his story, Joseph Mealey of Stoughton street, Dorchester, and Charles Hallsta, a taxi driver, of Granite avenue, Dorchester, were arraigned also, both charged with the larceny of the $100. He said they were watching his clothes while he was swimming.

All pleaded not guilty and the cases were continued until tomorrow.

Spangler was charged with bathing in the reservoir.

U. S.-BRITISH PACT OPPOSED BY HOUGHTON

Manchester, Eng., April 22 (A.P.)—Alanson B. Houghton, American Ambassador, today seconded the recent suggestion by Sir Esme Howard, British Ambassador to the United States, that an Anglo-Saxon alliance would not better the relations between the United States and Great Britain.

"We must not hope or seek to develop those wholly natural helpful relations between British and American peoples into anything like an alliance," Mr. Houghton said in an address at the luncheon given by the Manchester Chamber of Commerce.

"The idea may be tempting; nevertheless, I believe it to be wholly false. To bring the English-speaking peoples together into an armed and exclusive group, prepared, if need be, to enforce its collective will by force, would, if it were possible, tend neither to promote peace nor to assure our mutual security.

"The only result would be to unite all the rest of the world against us. It would, slowly perhaps, but very definitely, make an end of peaceful progress. It would turn this earth once again into an armed camp. In the end, precisely what we sought to avoid—war—would result, and out of such a war we may be sure that neither honor nor safety nor profit to any people could possibly emerge.

"We may have to fight side by side in the future as in the past. That we do not know. But if the need arises, which God forbid, let it be for a cause and a reason which bring us instinctively together, not by a calculated arrangement which might of itself tend to bring about so dreadful a catastrophe."

38 UNION PICKETERS ARE HELD FOR TRIAL

Woonsocket, R. I., April 22 (A.P.)—The thirty-eight pickets arrested at the gates of the Social Mill, when they ignored police orders to move along are under $300 bail each for trial, May 5.

The men were arraigned at a special session of police court and all obtained bail. Chief of Police Coe holds there is no strike at the mill and picketing is a disturbance of the peace. Roderick J. Drolet, president, and Donal Masse, business agent of the local textile union, were among those arrested.

THAYER RULING ON GOULD'S AFFIDAVIT

The Boston Evening American is in receipt of so many letters from readers of the Sacco-Vanzetti case asking for court record information on various motions for a new trial and denial of Judge Webster Thayer, that the burden of one of these decisions will be published in this newspaper each day until all the vital ones have been printed.

One of the motions filed by the defence counsel after the verdict of guilty against Sacco and Vanzetti was based on the affidavit of Roy E. Gould, who was a witness in the case.

The defense claimed that his testimony, if accepted, would have justified the setting aside of the verdict and the ordering of a new trial. The motion, however, was denied by Judge Thayer on May 1, 1925. Gould was a salesman who catered to factory employes in the shoe towns.

This motion alleged that Roy E. Gould was an eye witness to the crime and was standing at a distance of not less than five feet and not more than ten feet from the automobile as it proceeded up Pearl street from the scene of the shooting on April 15, 1920 and that he had an unobstructed view of the person sitting on the front seat of the bandits' car to the right of the driver and that said person sitting there on the right of the driver fired a shot at Gould, the bullet going through Gould's overcoat.

It was further alleged that Gould on the day after the verdict had stated that Sacco was not the person he saw sitting on the front seat and that also Gould gave his name to the police at Braintree almost immediately after the shooting.

NEW EVIDENCE URGED.

It was further alleged by counsel for Sacco and Vanzetti that the evidence of Gould would ... new and independent testimony and not merely cumulative.

It was further alleged that Gould had the opportunity of observation and identification different from any other witnesses and it was claimed that had Gould's testimony been offered at the trial, it would have been competent, relevant and material to the main issue and would have been directly contradictory to the testimony of Louis Pelser, Francis J. Bedlin, Mary E. Splaine and Carlos Goodridge who were the only witnesses called on behalf of the Commonwealth who identified Sacco as actually participating in the crime and would have been corroborative of many witnesses called on Sacco's behalf.

MOTION IS DENIED.

Judge Thayer in his decision denying this motion for a new trial said: "To set aside a verdict on evidence of this character would be to deprive, in my judgment, the Commonwealth of its rights without reason or justification. As I have said before in other decisions, the public have rights in these verdicts that equal those of the defendant, rights that must be as safely guarded as those of the defendant.

"In the first place, this evidence only means the addition of one more eye-witness to the passing of the bandits' automobile. This, therefore, would simply mean one more piece of evidence of the same kind and directed to the same end and in my judgment would have no effect whatever upon the verdict.

"For these verdicts do not rest, in my judgment, upon testimony of the eyewitnesses, for the defendant as it has called more witnesses than the Commonwealth who testified that neither of the defendants were in the bandits' car. The evidence that convicted these defendants was circumstantial and based on what is known in law as 'Consciousness of Guilt.'

"This evidence corroborated as it was by the eyewitnesses was responsible for this verdict of guilty."

Tomorrow Judge Thayer's decision on another of these motions will be published.

Paid the Undertaker 30 Years Ago, Dies at Age of 105

Groton, April 22.—Mrs. Elizabeth Lawrence Davis, who more than 30 years ago made her own funeral clothing and paid an undertaker for his expected services, is dead at the age of 105 years, 3 months and 24 days.

The undertaker with whom she made the funeral arrangements long ago has been dead many years, and the gravestone she had erected for herself at that time is old and weather-marked.

Mrs. Davis' mind was clear until the end. She was born in Groton December 26, 1821. From the time of her marriage in 1849 until her husband died in 1891 she lived in Elmira, N. Y.

NAME THREE WINNERS IN HEALTH PLAY CONTEST

Announcement was made today by judges of their three awards in the third national health playwriting contest, conducted by the Massachusetts Tuberculosis League.

The three plays chosen were "A Dream Come True," by Gertrude Sullivan of Nazareth High School, South Boston; "Six Months" by Eleanor Herbert of B. M. C. Durfee High School, Fall River; "Today's Court of Honor," by Elizabeth W. Higgins of Mary E. Wells High School, Southbridge. Honorable mention was given to the play, "Dr. Skip," by Marguerite Gilhooley of the Salem Classical High School.

The three winning plays will be presented at the Copley Theatre next Friday afternoon. They then will be submitted to the National Tuberculosis Association as entries in the nation-wide contest.

The judges were E. E. Clive of the Copley Theatre, Dr. John B. Hawes, 2nd, president of the Boston Tuberculosis Association, and Carl Schrader, director of physical education, State department of education.

FINED $100 FOR 'CORRUPTING' BOOK SALE

Theodore Dreiser, one of America's foremost novelists, is guilty of writing literature "manifestly tending to corrupt the morals" of Massachusetts youth was the verdict handed down in Municipal Court today where Donald S. Friede, one of the publishers of "An American Tragedy," said to be Dreiser's greatest work, was found guilty of selling improper literature and fined $100.

After arguments by his counsel, Arthur Garfield Hays, of Tennessee "monkey case" fame, Friede was found guilty by Judge James H. Devlin who said "The case is very simple. I have read the two volumes and the lines of the book repeatedly violate the statute."

Several booksellers had testified to the number of copies they had sold during the past year. The men and women who have bought books, they testified, were all of mature minds and above the average intelligence. Many were Harvard students and several copies have been bought by public libraries.

Friede sold a copy of th novel to Lieut. Daniel Hines of the vice squad a week ago in order to make a test case on the book which had been banned by Dist. Atty William J. Foley. The fine was appealed.

Sen. Reed Stays in Hospital

Detroit, April 22 (A.P.).—Senator James A. Reed remained in the Henry Ford Hospital today for an indefinite period of relaxation to aid recovery from an attack of acute indigestion. Hospital authorities reported he had spent a restful night. Yesterday he smoked, read and had visitors, although attending physicians advised that he should not leave his bed.

CARDINAL TO CELEBRATE MASS IN ST. LEONARD'S

The seventh centenary of St. Francis of Assisi will draw to a close in the Eastern Provinces of the Franciscan Order here on Sunday, May 1. Impressive services and ceremonies will mark the day. Cardinal O'Connell will celebrate a solemn high mass at St. Leonard's Church in the North End to begin the day's celebration. A procession of Franciscan priests and other organizations will go from the church to the cathedral in the afternoon and Cardinal O'Connell will make an address. The three churches in Boston where Franciscan priests are in charge are St. Leonard's in the North End, St. Francis of Assisi, East Cambridge, and Our Lady of Mount Carmel, East Boston.

TWO BOYS ON RAFT DROWN IN RIPPOWAN

Square and Compass Ball

The third and last grand ball of the season of Square and Compass Club will be given at the Hotel Somerset Saturday. The hostesses are Mrs. Alvan T. Fuller, Mrs. Frederic W. Cook, Mrs. Robert G. Wilson, Jr., Mrs. George W. Soule, Mrs. Florian G. Arey and Mrs. Benjamin Wyman.

NATIVES UNDER MARTIAL LAW AT SHANGHAI

Shanghai, April 22 (A.P.).—Martial law was declared in the native city of Shanghai today because of agitation by radical unionists. Chinese police patrolled the streets and suspicious Chinese were searched.

Six radical leaders were executed in the native quarter of Lunwha.

Radio messages from Chinkiang today said that many troops apparently were preparing for an attack on the north bank of the Yangtse River. This, together with the landing on the north bank of a large number of troops from Nanking, tends to confirm reports that General Chiang Kai-Shek, leader of the moderate section of the Nationalists, has resumed his campaign against the Northerners.

Hankow, April 22 (A.P.).—Eugene Chen, Foreign Minister of the Cantonese government here, has protested against the presence of foreign gunboats in the Yangtse River off Hankow.

Chen asked the foreign business interests to meet him in connection with reopening their establishments, but they demurred saying that business was absolutely impossible under present conditions.

A British sailor was stabbed twice when he and a companion were attacked by a mob of coolies today while taking a ricksha ride.

WHO IS BEST-DRESSED MAN? WHY, COOLIDGE!

Philadelphia, April 22. — Mr. Coolidge is the best dressed man in the United States, in the opinion of Sir Charles Higham, British advertising expert. The President is one of the few Americans Sir Charles has noted with shoes shined.

And far from being a dumbbell," Sir Charles found the President talked vivacious, intelligent fashion on half a dozen subjects.

WOMEN ASKED TO STUDY CHILD LABOR QUESTIONS

Miss Mabel A. Strong, executive secretary of the Massachusetts Child Labor Committee, today issued a message to the Women's Clubs asking that they plan their program for the next year so that at least one meeting may be devoted to Child Labor questions. Speakers will be sent to the clubs by the committee.

FRIENDS RALLY TO DEFENSE OF KELLY

Los Angeles, April 22 (I.N.S.).—As the body of Ray Raymond, musical comedy film star, was being prepared for burial today Paul Kelly, juvenile film star, clad in denim, occupied a jail cell and Dorothy Mackaye, well-known actress and Raymond's wife, was in a critical condition as the result of a nervous breakdown—the culmination of an affair involving a resentful husband, the "other man" and the wife who refused to give up her relations with the youthful motion picture actor.

Kelly, who has admitted his love for Dorothy Mackaye, asserted he did not feel responsible for Raymond's death. Raymond died early Monday following a fist fight with Kelly Saturday night. Following the inquest Coroner Nance, however, characterized the fatal fight as "the most brutal homicide to come to the attention of the coroner's office in years."

Friends of Kelly have rallied to his defense. Florence Bain, Raymond's former wife, it was learned, will be asked to divulge details of her divorce from the musical comedy actor. Miss MacKaye is said to have been named as co-respondent when she was granted her decree.

In the event defense attorneys are able to prove that Raymond's marriage to Miss MacKaye was illegal, they will also attempt to show that Raymond had no right to resent Kelly's attentions to the actress.

Kelly will be arraigned on a murder charge Monday, when he is also scheduled to make his plea.

ONE KILLED, TWO STUNNED, AS LIGHTNING HITS BOAT

Philadelphia, April 22 (A.P.).—With one man lying dead across the bottom of a fishing launch and another unconscious after lightning struck the boat, the third member of a fishing party piloted the craft through a blinding thunderstorm to the Delaware river shore near Riverview Beach. The dead man was Leverman Hickman, 40, Pennsville, N. J. He, Norman Dollow and Asa McPherson were laying nets when suddenly caught in the storm. The bolt which killed him stunned the two others. The launch ran wild until Dollow regained consciousness and took the helm.

College Boys Name 8 Greatest Figures in History of U. S.

St. Bonaventure, N. Y., April 23 (A.P.)—The eight greatest figures in American history, in the opinion of Students of St. Bonaventure College here are: Christopher Columbus, George Washington, Benjamin Franklin, Thomas Jefferson, Abraham Lincoln, Henry W. Longfellow, Junipero Serra, Franciscan missionary and California pioneer, and Cardinal Gibbons.

U. S. INCREASES FORCE OF INSPECTORS ON BORDER

St. Albans, Vt., April 22 (A.P.)—More immigrant inspectors and patrol officers are to be placed on the Canadian border by the United States government, according to announcement here today.

More patrolmen are needed to properly guard the roads and lake region against illegal entry of aliens and more inspectors to examine legal immigrants at ports of entry, it was said. Several ports in this district will also be placed on a 24-hour open basis.

BETTY ALDEN'S SOCIETY COMMENT

"GIVE A BOOK WEEK" IS, with the return to town of Mrs. George Richmond Fearing, ill primed to move into the last of generous Bostonians as the chief philanthropic appeal for next week. Mrs. Fearing, important Bostonian of multifarious interests, directs the State-wide appeal which opens officially Monday morning when His Excellency the Governor dedicates the first book. Of course, the ever-willing Junior League is called upon to assist, and Miss Anabella Mumford and her Leaguers will effectively decorate the picture Monday morning and receive the first book in the name of the "American Merchant Marine Library Association."

IT'S AN ANNUAL APPEAL, this, to fill the libraries of the Merchant Marine, both afloat and ashore. As is the case in so many instances, Bostonians of the upper crust are backing Book Week to the utmost. Mrs. Barrett Wendell is one such and there are countless others. Mrs. Fearing, by the way who arrives home today, has been moving leisurely northward from Florida for the past month, breaking her journey here and there to visit some Garden Club or an estate whose grounds and gardens are particularly appealing to such a garden lover.

SPEAKING OF GARDEN LOVERS, the highly placed set of Bostonians devoted so unreservedly to Lowthorpe and its interests fall with delight the idea of two exhibitions, down on next week's calendar, that aim to show the public just exactly how much Lowthorpe is accomplishing in making the world more beautiful. The exhibitions are at No. 28 Newbury street, Tuesday afternoon and all day Wednesday, Tuesday, in fact, a doubly starred because then tea will be a feature. Some of Lowthorpe's best friends are asked to sit behind the urns and dispense this pleasant hospitality.

SARAH LYMAN SEARS

The fluffy-haired little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Francis P. Sears of Mount Vernon street was found here as she was giving her dolly a sunning in the Gardens.

THESE FRIENDS ARE MRS. EDWIN SIBLEY WEBSTER, MRS. STEPHEN V. R. CROSBY, MRS. Philip L. Spalding, Mrs. William G. Reynolds, Mrs. Frederick Beebe and Mrs. John Thayer. At the head of Lowthorpe and its garden activities there is Mrs. Stephen B. Davol, who, with Mrs. F. L. W. Richardson and Loring Underwood, compose a trio of leaders in which Lowthorpe may well rejoice. And here are many others likewise interested in Lowthorpe and its well being.

TRUE TO HIS PROMISE, FRED STONE CAME AND BROUGHT ALL THE OTHER STONES TO THE Disabled Ex-Service Men's sale at the Statler. And what is more, this star of the footlight world and his charming family bought with prodigality, and then, to heap the measure (as generous stage folk still), made a generous cash donation likewise. All of which is vastly pleasing to Mrs. Clarence Edwards, of the Exchange, and her co-workers. Mrs. Lars Anderson was on hand and had a lively sale of her book, the latest work from her pen, which she calls "The Wall Paper Code." She was very attractive, a vase of roses nodding at her shoulder, as she autographed copies for ready purchasers. Every penny of income from her books Mrs. Anderson devotes to philanthropies, of which she has a long list.

A DEBUTANTE OF NEXT SEASON, RICH IN THE POSSESSION OF A GLORIOUS VOICE, GREAT personal charm and hosts of highly placed friends and relatives is Miss Dorothea Frothingham, daughter of the Theodore Frothinghams of Beacon street. Intensive voice cultivation is Miss Dorothea's program, and to that end she and her mother have been for the past Winter living in France that Continental masters of repute may bestow the finish considered so necessary. A tea for Miss Frothingham is down on the debutants schedule, a home affair set for early November. I understand she does not return to this country until late in the present Spring.

POTENTATES OF THE JUNIOR DIVISION OF THE S. P. C. C. HAVE WOUND UP ANOTHER successful season. They gathered about Mrs. Frederick Strong Moseley's hospitable board yesterday for luncheon and to recount, officially, their various accomplishments for the society. It is a shining record they write down on the scroll. And "they" means Mrs. Gaspar Bacon, Mrs. Joseph Seabury, Mrs. Bernard C. Weld, Mrs. George S. West, Mrs. Henry W. Harris, Miss Mary Hunnewell, Mrs. Edward Weeks, Jr., and their associates.

THE SMART SET HAS EVER BEEN ARDENT IN SUPPORT OF THE SOCIETY THAT JUST NOW completes a season extremely satisfying both as to work done and golden material rewards that have come its way. And except for a bridge afternoon next week, at Mrs. Seabury's in Weston, money raising affairs for the Junior Division are in abeyance. Until another Autumn rolls round, and the pocketbook needs replenishing in order that a fine work for ill and abused youngsters (of whom there are by far too many in this sometimes grim old world) may go on in its accustomed way.

ANDREWS BACKS RUM SALE PLAN

New York, April 22 (A.P.).—Formation by bonded liquor warehouse owners of a national whiskey monopoly with the object of providing "good whiskey at a reasonable price" for persons who are ill is being considered by the government, Lincoln C. Andrews, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury in charge of prohibition, said today.

The monopoly, he said, was being formed at his suggestion and he declared that if the plan is perfected it should accomplish what the medicinal whiskey bill might have done had it been passed by Congress.

The plan was recently broached to the warehouse owners in Washington, he said. A tentative plan was submitted five days ago but found unsuitable, and yesterday a substitute plan was submitted for his inspection.

While neither plan has been accepted by the government, he said, progress was being made.

The plan provides for the formation of a holding corporation to purchase all available bonded liquor and concentrate it in no more than six warehouses to be operated under government supervision.

FORBID STRIKES IN ITALY

Rome, April 22 (A.P.).—Premier Mussolini's ideas of the proper relationship between employer and employe and between labor and the State are given concrete form in a "Charter of Labor" adopted by the Fascist Grand Council in special session.

The charter denounces the principle of a minimum wage, or general rules in wage fixing, advocating contracts based on living conditions and production. Absolute equality of wages in any single industry is also frowned on, the rule being made that workers with unusual ability should receive greater remuneration than ordinary workers.

The charter guarantees a six-day week, extra pay for night work, an annual paid holiday, civil and religious holidays when deemed possible, indemnity in proportion to the length of service in case of discharge, indemnity to the worker's family in case of death and the assurance of a position in case of short illness.

The document forbids strikes, lockouts, boycotts, obstructionism and sabotage.

STAR SPANGLED BANNER WILL KEEP ON WAVING

Chicago, April 22 (A.P.).—The "Star-Spangled Banner" will continue to wave, for a time at least, as the accepted national anthem. Another in the long series of attempts to establish a rival American hymn has ended in temporary failure.

Spurred by $1,500 in cash prizes, 961 composers prepared musical settings for Katherine Lee Bates' "America, the Beautiful" in the National Federation of Music Clubs' competition for a new national song. Four music experts last night announced their agreement that none of the settings was "fully adequate to the inspiring text."

Manuscripts in the federation's competition came from all parts of the United States and from Alaska, Hawaii, India, England and France. They were judged by Dr. Frank Damrosch, New York; Frederick S. Converse of Boston, Felix Borowski of Chicago and Dr. Peter K. Lutkin of Northwestern University.

The judges overrode an injunction not to select musical setting unless it was "at enough "to sweep people off his feet."

Pleasant surroundings. If you are not satisfied with your room—there's a suitable one listed for you in today's Classified Columns. Indicates 90.

PILOT PRAISES SMITH'S REPLY TO MARSHALL

Hope that Gov. Smith's reply to Charles C. Marshall of New York will settle for all time the imputation that a Catholic cannot be President of the United States and reconcile his conduct of the office with his church tenets, was expressed today in an editorial in The Pilot, official organ of the Catholic Archdiocese.

The editorial, headed "A True and Comprehensive Response," follows in part:

"Governor Smith's answer to the open letter of Mr. Charles C. Marshall should put to an end unworthy aspersions and insinuations that have been the stock in trade of certain elements in this country. Mr. Marshall in a series of questions virtually attacked the Governor's patriotism on the grounds of his Catholic religion, insinuating that he could not reconcile his loyalty to his church with his loyalty to his country.

"Incidentally the letter of Mr. Marshall imputed to American Catholics views, which if held by them, would question the loyalty of more than twenty million American citizens.

"The Governor's answer is clear, cogent and conclusive. He meets the issue raised by Mr. Marshall squarely, and answers not for himself or as a potential candidate for President, but for every Catholic in the land, and for every lover of religious freedom and toleration.

"It is to be hoped that the Marshall letter and the Smith answer will silence forever in this country the innuendo and whisperings that have done their evil work in the past and that now have their complete and dignified answer."

Calls Smith Issue Menace to Country

New York, April 22 (A.P.)—Colonel Patrick Henry Callahan, Democratic leader of Louisville, Ky., in a statement published today, charged that the procedure of the campaign to nominate Governor Alfred E. Smith as President constitutes "a direct disservice to the Catholic Church and is a menace to the future political destinies of our country.

Colonel Callahan declared he has been observing "with growing alarm the deliberate attempts being made" by certain New York newspapers, "to insist that Governor Smith be nominated for the reason that he is a Catholic."

Colonel Callahan, a prominent Catholic layman, also blamed friends and supporters of Governor Smith for injecting the religious issue into the 1924 Democratic National Convention, for which he said attempts were made to hold William G. McAdoo responsible.

THE OLD-FASHIONED Los Angeles Christian has painted on the back of his Ford touring car top, in white letters, a foot high, "Tell the World Jesus Saves." He drives slowly about the street, and some, undoubtedly repent.

E. F. HUTTON'S Los Angeles branches tell you that such comforting information was needed yesterday by Bears that have ignored good advice printed in this column for months past. They had a little Bear panic of their own, while stocks went up. General Motors and Atchison, well managed companies, went to "new high prices for all time." And some dejected Bear covered 10,400 shares of General Motors, in one transaction of nearly $2,000,000.

DON'T GAMBLE, for you will surely lose. And especially don't "sell short." That's like running in front of an express train.

In England, where you can borrow money cheaper than here, generally speaking, the bank rate is out from five to four and one-half. And here, money will be much cheaper. It's no time to be a bear. Best news of all, cotton went climbing; but unfortunately that was due to floods drowning out vast cotton areas.

MR. PAUL KELLY, movie actor in a small way, is held for murder. The usual roar about moving picture immorality will follow. It would be better to roar about the Snyder case, with the husband in the case brained with a sashweight as he slept.

Paul Kelly of the movies killed his man, husband of the lady he admired, in a fist fight, and probably had no intention of killing.

If guilty, Kelly probably will go to jail for at least ten years, to prove that even husbands have a right to live. But the incident does not justify any particular outcry against the movies.

WOMEN HAVE been described in many ways—Helen, who launched a thousand ships; Cleopatra, plain but rich, who stole a husband from the noble sister of Augustus. Different from all is Damon Runyon's description of the lady in the Snyder murder case: "A chilly looking blonde with frosty eyes and one of those marble you-bet-you-will chins."

SCHOPENHAUER, in his "Studies In Pessimism," describes women generally as undersized, narrow shouldered, broad hipped, short legged, and not at all beautiful.

He went too far one way, Abelard too far the other, Damon Runyon is carefully impartial.

IT IS SUMMER weather out here, with a nice breeze from the Pacific Ocean, potato plants standing two feet high in front of many little bungalows, active building everywhere, fruit trees heavily loaded, and every citizen ready to prove that "California has only started."

ONE HUNDRED AND FIFTY THOUSAND years ago your ancestors struggled with levers made of a tree to turn over the half-devoured carcass of a mammoth. No possibility of dragging it home, it was eaten on the spot. On April 28, the Volunteer Ore Company, Palmer, Mich., will explode at one time 50,000 pounds of dynamite, and by that single blow blast out 250,000 tons of iron ore. The powerful man with his MUSCLE can lift 500 pounds, straining and groaning. The thinking man pressing an electric button, can lift 500,000,000 pounds. That is progress.

HOT WATER ON TAP

HOT WATER for Bathing Shaving Laundry Cooking Housework

WHY wait to heat water every time you want it? With a Kompak you can have hot water always on tap.

Replace your present hot water equipment with a more convenient method of obtaining the hot water comfort you have always wanted. Come in and let us demonstrate a KOMPAK to you—now—while our special Home Comfort Opportunity is in effect.

The KOMPAK AUTOMATIC STORAGE GAS WATER HEATER

provides a continuous supply of clean, hot water, economically heated and automatically replenished—always in advance of your needs.

IT IS ABSOLUTELY AUTOMATIC. A valve controlled by the temperature of the water turns the fuel "on" or "off," according as heat is needed to maintain a tank full of hot water.

IT IS ECONOMICAL. On the principle that it is less expensive to keep hot water than to heat cold water, the KOMPAK is more economical, servicewise considered, than any other.

Our Special Offer

if you are located within the scope of our service, allows you to try the KOMPAK system in your own home for 30 days without cost or obligation. Don't wait any longer! Call at any of our offices or

Proctor Motion Is Explained in Brief

The Sacco-Vanzetti case again challenges public attention.

In line with the policy of presenting all matters as fully as possible, the Boston Evening American publishes a legal analysis of the trial made by Felix Frankfurter, LL. B., instructor in law in Harvard.

In presenting Dr. Frankfurter's analysis, the Boston Evening American in no degree either endorses or sponsors it. The author today deals with the Proctor motion based on the testimony of Captain Proctor of the State Police.

By FELIX FRANKFURTER
CHAPTER XII

Proctor motion. We have now reached a stage of the case, the details of which shake one's confidence in the whole course of the proceedings and reveal a situation which in and of itself undermines the respect usually to be accorded to a jury's verdict.

By prearrangement the prosecution brought before the jury a piece of evidence apparently most damaging to the defendants, when in fact the full truth concerning this evidence was very favorable to them.

Vital to the identification of Sacco and Vanzetti as the murderers was the identification of one of the fatal bullets as a bullet coming from Sacco's pistol. The evidence excluded the possibility that five other bullets found in the dead bodies were fired either by Sacco or by Vanzetti.

When Judge Thayer placed the case in the jury's hands for judgment he charged them that the Commonwealth had introduced the testimony of two experts, Proctor and Van Amburgh, to the effect that the fatal bullet went through Sacco's pistol. Such was not the belief of Proctor; he refused to accede to this view in the course of the prosecution of the case, and the district attorney knew that such was not intended to be his testimony. These startling statements call for detailed proof.

Proctor at the time of his testimony was captain of State police and had been in the department for twenty-three years. On the witness stand he was qualified at length as an expert who had for twenty years been making examination of and experiments with bullets and revolvers and had testified in over a hundred capital cases.

His testimony was thus offered by the State as entitled to the greatest weight. If the jury could be convinced that the bullet found in Berardelli's body came out of Sacco's pistol, the State's case was invincible. On this crucial issue Captain Proctor testified as follows at the trial:

Q.—Have you an opinion as to whether bullet No. 8 [Exhibit 18] was fired from the Colt automatic which is in evidence [Sacco's pistol]?

A.—I have.

Q.—And what is your opinion? My opinion is that it is consistent with being fired from that pistol. (R. 472.)

The Government placed chief reliance on the expert testimony. In his closing argument the District Attorney told the jury: "You might disregard all the identification testimony, and base your verdict on the testimony of these experts." It weighed heavily in the Court's charge. In simple English Judge Thayer interpreted the evidence to mean that it was his (Sacco's) pistol that fired the bullet which caused the death of Berardelli. To this effect the Commonwealth introduced the testimony of two witnesses, Messrs. Proctor and Van Amburgh. (R. 1182.)

Naturally the Court's interpretation became the jury's. By their silence, both the District Attorney and the counsel for the defense apparently acquiesced in the Court's interpretation. After the conviction Proctor in an affidavit swore to the following account of his true views and the manner in which they were phrased for the purposes of the trial. After giving his experience he swore that one of the bullets was, as I then testified and still believe, fired from a Colt automatic pistol of 32 calibre. During the preparation for the trial, my attention was repeatedly called by the District Attorney and his assistants to the question: whether I could find any evidence which would justify the opinion that the particular bullet taken from the body of Berardelli, which came from a Colt automatic pistol came from the particular Colt automatic pistol taken from Sacco.

I used every means available to me for forming an opinion on this subject. I conducted, with Captain Van Amburgh, certain tests at Lowell, about which I testified, consisting in firing certain cartridges through Sacco's pistol. At no time was I able to find any evidence whatever which tended to convince me that the particular model bullet found in Berardelli's body, which came from a Colt automatic pistol, which I think was numbered 3 and had some other exhibit number, came from Sacco's pistol, and I so informed the District Attorney and his assistant before the trial.

This bullet was what is commonly called a full metalpatch bullet and although I repeatedly talked over with Captain Van Amburgh the scratch or scratches which he claimed tended to identify this bullet as one that must have gone through Sacco's pistol, his statements concerning the identifying marks seemed to me entirely unconvincing.

At the trial, the District Attorney did not ask me whether I had found any evidence that the so-called mortal bullet which I have referred to as number 8 passed through Sacco's pistol, nor was I asked that question on cross-examination. The District Attorney desired to ask me that question, but I had repeatedly told him that if he did I should be obliged to answer in the negative.

This affidavit of Proctor's was made the basis of Mr. Thompson's motion for a new trial before Judge Thayer. Here was a charge going to the vitals of the case, made by a high official of the police agencies of the State. How did the district attorney meet it? Mr. Katzmann and his assistant, Mr. Williams, filed affidavits in reply. Did they contradict Proctor? Let their affidavits speak.

Katzmann stated that,

prior to his testifying, Captain Proctor told me that he was prepared to testify that the mortal bullet was consistent with having been fired from the Sacco pistol; that I did not repeatedly ask him whether he had found any evidence that the mortal bullet had passed through the Sacco pistol, nor did he repeatedly tell me that if I did ask him that question he would be obliged to reply in the negative.

Williams' affidavit, after setting forth that Captain Proctor told him before the trial that comparisons of the mortal bullet with bullets "pushed by him through various types of pistols" showed that "the mortal bullet had been fired in a Colt automatic pistol," proceeded:

He (Proctor) said that all he could do was to determine the width of the landmarks upon the bullet. His attention was not repeatedly called to the question, whether he could find any evidence which would justify the opinion that this bullet came from the Sacco pistol.

Proctor's disclosures remain uncontradicted; he was unable to identify the murder bullet as Sacco's bullet; he told Katzmann and Williams that he was unable to do it; he told them that if he were asked the question on the witness stand he would have to testify that he could not make the identification; a form of words was therefore found by which, without committing perjury, he could convey the impression that he had testified to the identification.

Can there be any dissent among impartial minds from the way in which Mr. Thompson characterized this transaction in his argument before Judge Thayer—

In your closing charge, your honor, you disclosed the importance which you attached to the testimony of these experts. The former District Attorney and the present District Attorney do not deny that the jury got an erroneous understanding, and that your honor got an erroneous understanding of the testimony of one of these witnesses.

They heard your honor's charge. Did they rise in their seats to correct you? No, they sat by and said never a word. They profited by Captain Proctor's testimony. How can that be reconciled with a desire to be fair to men on trial for their lives? The more I reflect upon this matter, the worse it seems.

Yet Judge Thayer found no warrant in the Proctor incident for directing a new trial. And why?

N. E. METHODISTS APPEAL FOR SACCO AND VANZETTI

die the week of July 10, unless Governor Fuller intervenes.

THOMPSON'S LETTER.

Attorney Thompson, in his letter to the Governor, said that if the executive grants an impartial investigation of the Sacco-Vanzetti case the testimony of Madeiros will be invaluable and that, therefore, the death of this important witness should be delayed until the Sacco and Vanzetti case is finally disposed of.

Meantime Edward Holton James, Beacon Hill millionaire liberal, made a vain effort to see Governor Fuller today to obtain permission to use Gardner Auditorium for a congress of witnesses in the Sacco-Vanzetti case. [illegible] Fuller [illegible] Boston [illegible] to [illegible] Attorney [illegible] Buildings who took him to the [illegible] case only for state's participants. James then went to the Governor's office where Secretary Herman McDonald told him to put his request in writing.

James originally planned to hold the congress in New York, but today he decided that Boston would be better, inasmuch as most of the witnesses live in this vicinity.

METHODISTS INTERVENE.

The New England Methodist Episcopal conference, in session at Somerville, today adopted unanimously a resolution calling on Governor Fuller to examine into every phase of the Sacco-Vanzetti case.

Coolidge Keeps "Hands Off" the Sacco-Vanzetti Case

Washington, April 22.—President Coolidge will have nothing at all to do with the Sacco-Vanzetti case.

Notice will the Department of Justice according to announcement made in Washington by Attorney General Sargent.

The Attorney General said that nearly 400 letters and postcards appealing for clemency for the two men have been received by the President, but that his only reply is that the question is solely up to Governor Fuller.

Nearly all the letters protested on the ground that the men had not received a fair trial, and several of the writers pointed out that the Federal government should take a hand in the matter because the Department of Justice was involved in the case at its beginning, as its work was investigated Sacco and Vanzetti because of their radical views.

"But it is not a case in which the Federal government or the President has any authority or any right to interfere," said the Attorney General.

Many of the letters received in Washington were from Romans, the writers apparently being radical sympathizers of the two men.

The resolution was offered by the Rev. J. Franklin Knotts of Dorchester and immediately following its passage Bishop Wilson F. Dunnell of Chattanooga, Tenn. who is presiding appointed a committee of five ministers to either send the resolution or deliver it to Governor Fuller in person.

COMMITTEE NAMED.

The committee is composed of the Rev. Fred Winslow Adams of Trinity church, Springfield, the Rev. Henry H. Crane of Malden, the Rev. Elmer A. Leslie of Brookline, the Rev. J. Franklin Knotts of Dorchester and the Rev. W. B. Mitchell of Wesley church, Worcester. Those men signed the resolution, following its adoption.

Following the action of Bishop Lawrence of the Episcopal church, in urging Governor Fuller to appoint an investigating committee, the Governor's office has received scores of communications from members of the clergy and from prominent laymen, both attacking and condemning the Bishop's stand.

Today, Heaine E. Herrey of 301 Vernon street, a communicant in the Episcopal church, wrote Governor Fuller decrying the action of Bishop Lawrence.

"Dr. Gordon is right. Bishop Lawrence is wrong," wrote the Beacon Hill woman. "I am an Episcopalian and like to agree with the bishop, but I am constrained to believe that in this matter he is ill advised. Where in this world shall we find better courts than in Massachusetts? For my part I do not want to see their work undone or even rattled by a group of gentlemen. That way danger lies."

The Rev. Dr. Robert Watson, president of the Massachusetts Federation of Churches and also pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, Boston, followed Bishop Lawrence's lead and today in a letter urged Governor Fuller to appoint a committee to review the Sacco-Vanzetti case and then report to him.

Dr. E. Talmadge Root, executive secretary of the Massachusetts Federation of Churches, sent a similar letter to the Governor.

Instead of a defense fund running into the millions, the Sacco Defense Committee has collected and expended $287,000 since 1921, according to a statement issued today from the headquarters on Hanover street.

Gardner Jackson, active in the work of the committee, in a statement branded as untrue the claims of wide-spread and Italian expenditure of funds and graft which were made in a letter sent Governor Fuller by Francis Bardon Welsh of Philadelphia.

Fred Moore, first counsel for Sacco and Vanzetti, and the investigators who worked for the defense committee were paid a total of $17,500, according to Mr. Jackson. William G. Thompson, the present attorney for Sacco and Vanzetti, was paid a fee of $50,000 and has never received another cent, Mr. Jackson says.

Refuse Union Plea for Sacco Rally on May Day

The application of Upholsterers' Union, Local No. 87, for permission to hold a Sacco-Vanzetti protest meeting at Parkman Bandstand, Sunday, May 1, was refused by John Casey, Boston licensing clerk, today.

Casey explained that Boston Lodge of Elks No. 10 obtained a permit early in March for the use of the bandstand on May 1. There has been no application for the use of the bandstand next Sunday, but no permit will be issued on account of Mayor Nichols' absence from the city.

The Sacco defense committee has cancelled plans for a public meeting on Sunday on account of inability to get a hall. It was announced a public meeting will be held on Boston Common later.

Later. A Sacco-Vanzetti mass meeting will be held tonight at No. 433 Broadway, Chelsea.

B. U. JUNIOR WEEK OPENS NEXT MONDAY

Boston University's Junior Week gets under way next Monday night, when the Foundation formal dance is conducted at the Hotel Kenmore, P. Burnell Hanson, chairman of the committee in charge.

On Tuesday the second all-university assembly of the year will be conducted [illegible] Arena. Upon [illegible] will be elevated Wednesday [illegible] the [illegible] Friday [illegible] Ball [illegible] Prom are scheduled for Friday.

URGE U. S. KEEP EMBARGO ON MUNITIONS TO MEXICO

Hartford, Ct., April 22 (A.P.)—An open letter to President Coolidge supporting the policy of arbitration with Mexico, signed by a group of citizens of Connecticut, was forwarded today.

The letter urges the President to continue the policy of friendship for Latin American nations. It urges the embargo on arms to Mexico not be lifted at this time.

SAME old pork chops for dinner. Sonny "turns up his nose" as he takes his seat at the table. But after the first few mouthfuls, a look of pleased surprise flashes over his face.
"Say! Mother, I didn't know just chops could be so good," he exclaims. And Daddy echoes his remark.
The secret? Mother seasoned the chops, before cooking, with Gulden's Mustard. She spread both sides with a generous layer of Gulden's, and then placed on the fire. As they cooked, the millions of atoms of flavor spread throughout the chops, adding new zest and fresh appeal.
This magic seasoning, when used in cooking, works wonders with all kinds of meats, vegetables, sauces and gravies. Gulden's is a delightful blending of the world's finest mustard seeds with delicate spices. It is the one complete seasoner for cooking, all ready to use. Only in Gulden's do you get that perfect combination of rich, mellow spices with the lively little mustard seed. It's zestful but not harsh or biting.

RESCUE PLANES ASKED FOR IN FLOOD AREA

grave today. There were almost hourly reports of further deaths, desolation and destruction caused by the furious tide of the Mississippi and its tributaries.

The number of known dead has been placed at 25, and belief is that the toll will grow much greater. Property damage was estimated high into the millions and more than a hundred thousand were homeless and in dire need of food, clothing and shelter.

Ten [illegible] conditions continued to exist around practically the entire State of Arkansas, particularly the St. Francis valley and the Mississippi delta.

At Hickman, Ky., where thousands of refugees were being cared for, owing to breaks in levees above and across the river at New Madrid, Mo., today the levees were barely able to hold the coursing current.

THOUSANDS FLEE.

The Mississippi delta struggled against long odds as waters spread over 3,000 square miles. Thousands have been forced to flee from their homes, many are marooned, hungry, cold and destitute.

A serious situation prevailed at Greenville, Miss., today as rapidly rising flood washed through the business section and caused the waterworks plant to cease pumping. Two main levees are reported to be leaking.

Suffering among the refugees was increasing with bitter weather, adding to the horror of mud and disease. Epidemics of mumps, measles and whooping cough were spreading with little medical aid available.

Across the Mississippi where the Arkansas tributaries are piling great [illegible] of water onto the levees in [illegible] there are probably 200,000 persons viewing with alarm the ever-increasing danger.

RELIEF TRAIN SPEEDS.

A relief train bearing 18 boats and 18 men to operate them was speeding southward from St. Louis toward Arkansas. The boats were to be launched, it was planned, when the train should be stopped by the high waters.

Unconfirmed reports from Knowlton, Ark., said that 15 refugees drowned there when a boat was thrown through the crevasse rent in the levee at that point.

Pelsville, Ark., was literally wiped from the map when the flood tore buildings from their foundations and swept them away.

Towns Abandoned as Residents Flee Flood

St. Louis, April 22 (A.P.)—The towns of Lilbourn and New Madrid in southeast Missouri were virtually abandoned today as the residents fled before the raging waters of the Mississippi.

Several hundred inhabitants left the stricken area aboard a special train late yesterday. Others previously had been taken to places of safety. Lilbourn, with a population of 1,000, is three miles west of New Madrid and the first to suffer when the levee broke before the torrent.

Eighteen motor boats were rushed aboard a special train here last night in response to appeals from the Red Cross at Little Rock, Ark., saying hundreds of persons were in danger of drowning in that vicinity unless motor boats were found to get them out of the threatened area. Operators went with the craft and the train was given right of way over the Missouri Pacific lines.

PLEA FOR FLOOD SUFFERERS BY PRESIDENT

Washington, April 22 (A.P.).—President Coolidge today issued a proclamation pleading aid for Mississippi River flood sufferers.

The flood situation "is indeed grave," the President's proclamation said, and for the task of caring for the thousands of refugees "additional funds must be obtained immediately."

President Coolidge recounted the efforts of the War Department and other government branches to relieve suffering, but added that the "burden of caring for the homeless rests upon this agency designated by government charter to provide relief in disaster—the American Red Cross.

"I am confident," he said, "that, as always in the past, the people will support the Red Cross in its humane task."

THE PROCLAMATION.

The proclamation follows:

"To the people of the United States:

"Eight States of the Union are suffering one of the most extensive floods in the history of the country. For more than two weeks the waters of the Mississippi River and its tributaries have been overflowing and breaking through the levees raised to give them within their courses.

"They have deluged millions of acres of agricultural lands, inundated many towns and driven thousands of people from their homes. The crest of the flood is advancing southward, daily creating new ruin.

"In the past few days the situation instead of improving as had been hoped, has been rapidly growing worse. The flood waters have continually forced new breaches in the levees, despite the efforts of hundreds of workers with consequent increased destruction.

MUST BE FED.

The American Red Cross reports that, by a most conservative estimate there are now more than [illegible] refugees from the floods who must be cared for by the Red Cross. While the emergency continues, which will be for weeks, these refugees must be fed, sheltered and clothed. Their health must be protected.

"In the event that the floods rise to the predicted higher levels in the next few days, the number whose most primary needs must be cared for will be quickly doubled or trebled. The situation is, indeed, grave.

"The government is giving such aid as lies within its power. Government boats, [illegible] are available for the need to rescue those in danger and convey refugees to safety. The War Department is providing the Red Cross with tents for housing refugees. The National Guard, State and local authorities are assisting, but the burden of caring for the homeless rests upon the agency designated by government charter to provide relief in disaster—the American National Red Cross. For so great a task additional funds must be obtained immediately.

"It therefore becomes my duty as President of the United States and president of the American National Red Cross to direct the sympathy of our people to the sad plight of thousands of their fellow-citizens, and to urge that generous contributions be promptly forthcoming to alleviate their suffering.

"In order that these may be the utmost expedition and effectiveness in the administration of the relief fund, I recommend that all contributions [illegible] be forwarded to the nearest local Red Cross chapter or to the American National Red Cross headquarters offices at Washington, St. Louis or San Francisco.

60 COUPLES FOX-TROT 15 MILES IN WORLD TEST

Los Angeles, April 22 (A.P.).—Approximately 20 couples danced to the jazzy rhythm of one-steps and fox trots and the dreamy strains of the waltz on a ballroom floor here today in competition for the "world's endurance dancing championship," which started yesterday at Venice, 15 miles away.

Those still in the whirl were all that remained of a starting field of 120 couples who glided off the Venice Pier at 6 o'clock yesterday afternoon on a 15-mile "shuffle" over pavement to the public dance hall here.

Hemmed in on all sides by spectators, the dancers moved away from the pier within a roped off enclosure, dancing to the music furnished by jazz orchestras preceding them in motor trucks.

Two stops, each of ten minutes, were made en route from the Beach City, but when the ballroom was reached at 11 o'clock last night, five hours after the start, only 60 couples remained. The winners receive a $1,000 prize.

'COOL, NO RAIN!' IS FORECAST

Leaving only little more than a quarter of an inch of rain in Greater Boston, the storm area which visited New England, had moved early today to the St. Lawrence valley.

Its struggling tail extending along the Atlantic coast is officially predicted to cloud New England skies until tomorrow, when fair cool weather is expected to arrive for the weekend.

Forecast for Boston and vicinity: Partly cloudy and colder tonight; Saturday fair; fresh westerly winds

A Startling Serial Story of Love, Terror and the Night Clubs

Jacqueline Kay, nineteen and attractive, comes to Boston from Houlton, Me., and obtains an engagement as singer at the Sea Shell, a cabaret. The proprietor, Julius Lupino, takes more than a friendly interest in her. She meets Tom Ware, who is informed by Lupino that Jacqueline is under his personal care. Lupino accompanying her home, she is accosted by a man, whom Lupino kills. The man is known as "The Lump," a criminal. Lupino is arrested and admits killing the man. Jacqueline leaves the Sea Shell, but is persuaded by Abe Gordon, Lupino's lawyer, to return. She does so and Lupino is released on bail. Ware warns Jacqueline against Lupino. Lupino tells the girl that he is ready to back her in a show, thus giving her her big chance. Jacqueline receives a note from Ware asking her to breakfast with him. She accepts.

CHAPTER 16

WHEN she went back to her little room alone, Jacqueline's heart was throbbing with a beautiful, exultant satisfaction. She had come to Boston to realize her dreams of an artistic career . . . and her dreams were coming true!

Julius Lupino had virtually promised to put her into the leading role in a new musical show . . . . Lupino could not stop thinking of Tom Ware and his dire predictions of a ruinous fate if she continued her association with the proprietor of the Sea Shell. Well—Tom Ware had been wrong about that! Nevertheless, he was a wonderful young man, albeit most handsome, and, as his association with Sunday Club days had proved, he might be able to give her much to her feelings, and now that he had left the mighty impressive her heart would yield completely to Tom Ware's charms. His interest in her had, by some curious mental kink, aroused her to passionate ardor at their last meeting—but it had only been on the surface.

When she fell asleep an impression of his attractive personality if not her mind like an idyllic peaceful dream was daylight defied it and her waking as she awoke the impression of him was still all that it was.

Hours later, the surprise greeted her. Under the door, she knew not when or how, a note had been slipped. It was from Mr. Dear Miss Kay:

Let's forget and make up. I'm sorry I was so crude.

I judge you will be awake some time between noon and 1 o'clock. Would you have luncheon or breakfast with me? Please drop me a line telling me your choice. Will be waiting to hear from you right after 12 o'clock.

Yours with tremendous sincerity,
Thomas J. Ware.

Sweetly like a pleasurable shock the message fascinated her. But standing thought was: Please turn to Page 19, Column 4

Roberta Pratt, Six, Climbs Into Witness Chair and Describes Her Punishment

New York, April 22 (A.P.).—Roberta Jane Pratt, 6 years old, climbed into the witness chair in special sessions today to testify against her foster-mother, Mrs. Everett S. Pratt of Des Moines, Ia., on trial for third degree assault in connection with the alleged burning and beating of the child in the Plaza Hotel a few weeks ago.

Roberta, attired in a bright blue dress with fur trimmings, said she had been living with her mother and "daddy" at the Hotel Plaza for she did not know how long when one night Mrs. Pratt burned her. she tired with a burning iron for leaving the room in the hotel during the absence of her foster parents at night.

"What did she burn you with?" "With a curling iron."

"Was it attached to the electricity?"

"Yes, it was in the light above the dressing table."

"How did she burn you?"

"Here and here, pulling her right arm and off sleeve."

Justice Beth interrupted to ask "were your stockings on at that time?"

"Yes," answered Roberta. "She put the iron inside my stocking." The child testified she had been whipped with a hand mirror and with a hook "for your clothes, and a shoe tree."

"Was there any pain?"

"No, there was no pain."

CHELSEA MAN FINED $25 FOR HITTING POLICEMAN

In spite of a city councilor's testimony in his behalf, Harry Nayman of Chelsea today was found guilty in Chelsea district court of striking a policeman and using profanity. Nayman appealed fines of $25 for assault and battery and $2 for profanity, which Judge Cutler imposed. Councilor John Hanlon testified that Nayman did not hit Patrolman Warren Dwan or use profanity to him at the time of his arrest, but the court declared that he believed the policeman.

FIGHTS FOR STATE POST

WILL APPEAL TO COURTS, FRIENDS SAY

Miss Mary A. Donovan, whose dismissal from the State Department of Labor and Industries has been approved by Commissioner E. Leroy Sweetser, has not given up the fight to regain her old position.

Friends of Miss Mary A. Donovan recently dismissed from the State department of labor and industries, believe that she will carry the contest with her appeal from the decision of Commissioner E. Leroy Sweetser.

The commissioner made his decree final by his formal approval of the woman's discharge, and the courts are her only recourse.

While her friends say that Miss Donovan was actively discharged because of her activity in the Sacco-Vanzetti case, the commissioner's report states simply that upon her position becoming vacant she was absent from her work without leave and then "made false and misleading reports to her superiors."

The Red Signal ~ Disappointed Callers ~ By Homer Banks

"SAVE ROSALIND!" PLEADS HELEN.—Roger looked at her incredulously. "Do you know Samuel Manton?" he managed to gasp. Helen silenced him with a torrent of words. "Please don't ask me anything now. It is Rosalind I am thinking of—that child married to that man! Don't you understand? She loves you. You must go to her and explain everything. Take Adelaide with you. Lay all the cards on the table! Kidnap her! Do anything!" Roger, amazed at her intensity, reached for his hat.

ADELAIDE'S AID SOUGHT.—He hurried into a taxi and raced for the theatre, hoping to find Adelaide still in her dressing room. Luck favored him. He greeted the girl effusively, and in a few words explained to her what Helen had told him. "We must save Rosalind from Manton if we have to take her prisoner and hold her until we can show him up for the man he is. You must help me. You see," and Roger laughed, "Rosalind thinks I am in love with you!"

ROGER FINDS AN ALLY.—Adelaide stood walked over to Roger and placed her hands shoulders. "Are you sure she loves you asked, gazing earnestly into his eyes. nodded. "I don't think there can be any d that now. Helen has been acting very myste and she knows things that she won't tell. I half hysterical back in my office." "You poor responded Adelaide sympathetically. "Call a while I dress and we will go to Rosalind."

Will Cost of Living Keep on Creeping Downwards?

By R. C. FORBES.

NEW YORK, April 22—Cost of living should be going down! All the authorities, from the Department of Labor down, prove it by elaborate statistics — index numbers they call them — comparisons. My wife says she hasn't noticed that her money is going any further and you may not have noticed any fall in prices either. But that whole elaborate (and mathematical) array of figures never can be wrong. Therefore prices have crept downwards calculator cannot be questioned.

R. C. Forbes

Keats, too, for ill and in a while, has at last begun to speak in favor of prices.

DECLINING prices are also the rule in the principal foreign countries.

AT HOME the price level has kept extraordinarily stable for two years. In only one month since the end of 1925 has the average price of commodities, as compiled by the Bureau of Labor Statistics, fluctuated more than one tenth of 1 per cent. Because the changes have been upwards only twice in the last fifteen months, the repeated modest declines have, since January of last year, meant a drop of 6½ per cent. During the last twelve months the decline has slightly exceeded 4 per cent—a not unimportant change.

TAKING THE 1913 average prices as representing 100, this table shows how the various groups of commodities have risen as compared with a year ago.

	Mr. 1927	Mar. 1926
Farm products	150.7	149.9
Food	148.9	148.2
Cloths and clothing	160.1	160.1
Fuel and lighting	154.6	154.6
Metals and metal products	128.8	130.7
Building materials	170.4	169.7
Chemicals and drugs	126.7	131.6
House furnishing goods	154.1	154.1
Miscellaneous	116.6	116.8
All commodities	150.5	150.8

THE DOLLAR, due to the fall in prices, is gradually recovering its purchasing power. According to Professor Irving Fisher, the dollar was worth only 46% cents when prices reached their peak in May, 1920. That, as you will remember, was a period of inflation. The dollar's present purchasing power is 71 cents.

If this dollar, computed with the 1914 dollar, is worth 71.3. This little table shows how the dollar's real value has fluctuated:

	Dollar
1920 May (peak)	46.8
1920 Jan. (low)	139.0
1921 Average	72.1
1924 Average	87.0
1925 Average	83.5
1926 Average	139.3

WHAT OF THE future? Will prices in this country continue to sag? My guess would be that industrial prices, as a whole, may very gradually creep lower, owing to competition and to persistent and successful search for more efficient production methods. But agricultural prices may show some recovery. It is to be hoped they will.

GOODYEAR SUIT END SOUGHT

Columbus, O., April 22 — Chief Justice Carrington T. Marshall of the Ohio Supreme Court at Columbus was asked by Prosecutor Oscar Hunsicker to dismiss the Goodyear "control" suits which are before him.

The suits, two in number, ask for cancellation of a number of local year's management deeds and dismissal of the charges. The suits were elected under the management stock's powers.

The suits were filed Aug. 12, 1926, by ex-Prosecutor O. Walter Booth of Attorneys for all sides of the Goodyear controversy submitted the request for dismissal.

A court order for forming the request is expected momentarily.

The general effect of the dismissal, according to attorneys for those will be to speed up over Goodyear litigation.

The actual purposes of the Supreme Court order, known in the litigation as the Booth "writ of mandamus" in connection with the Pleas Court suits, the appointment of Clarence Dillon and Lewis Sherwin, two of Goodyear's three management stockholders for Tomlinson and Booth to vote for $15,000,000 alleged to have been wrongfully removed from Goodyear's assets.

The "quo warranto cases" bringing cancellation of the management stock, declared that it had to cause it has a par value of $1 a share, where the law requires a minimum par value of $100 a share for such stock. In making transfer of the suits, Booth reserved the right to refile them if the management should refuse to do what it is.

FULLER AND SUGGS BATTLE AT ARENA

RUNYON SAYS

ERNIE SCHAAF, of New Jersey.

Roy Hoot Burger, of Kansas.

Wyoming Warner, of Wyoming.

Armand Emanuel, of California.

Ben Pound, of Florida.

Here are five names, all of them probably unfamiliar to the average reader. Yet I make bold to say that in a year one or more of them will be as well known to the followers of the Manly Art of Scrambling Fors as is the name of E. James Moines, of Boston, or the name of Senor Paulino Oo-scray-umwy, of Spain, which you must admit is a well-known name, even if nobody can say it.

Damon Runyon

The names recited above are appended to young men representing five different sections of this great and glorious nation — the effete East, the Middle West, the Rocky Mountain West, the Pacific Coast and the far South.

These young men are fresh-laid heavyweights, and I bring them to your attention just to show you that, in spite of droughts, financial depression, high winds and higher blood pressure, this country need have no fear of a dearth of heavyweight material during the Republican Administration, at least.

PERHAPS one of these young fellows is a coming heavyweight champion of the world. I do not know it. In fact, you never can tell. But heavyweight champions have to come from somewhere, so why not New Jersey, Kansas, Wyoming, California or even Florida?

I have mentioned the New Jersey entry, Ernie Schaaf, in this column on several occasions. He is 19 years old, a 190-pound ex-sailor, who has been attracting some attention up around Boston. Many more or less expert observers think he is the best heavyweight prospect in the country, but the holder of an even more sensational record is Roy Hoot Burger, the ax-faced hand from Dodge City, Kan., the late Bat Masterson's old home.

The time I looked, Roy Hoot had had about twenty-nine battles and twenty-seven knockouts which seem to me an almost impossible professional record. Most of his fights ended in a few rounds, and, while the calibre of many of his opponents was strictly camembert, a knockout is a knockout in any language.

Schaaf Is Good, But Burger Better

Wyoming Warner, of Cheyenne, Wyo., is a stable-boiler years older who was brought to New York a few months ago by none other than my old amigo, Otto C. Floto, the famous sports writer of Denver, and turned over to Harry Lenny, an old-time boxer and one of the greatest teachers of young fighters in the business.

Warner had an awkward standup style when Lenny got him, and Lenny promptly began schooling him to crouch and weave and to speed. It is the Lenny theory that speed can beat big fellows. For that matter speed generally wins in anything.

ARMAND EMANUEL, the Californian, is a big Hebrew, whose title as a boxer of amazing skill had been a-seeping through boxing circles for some time. He has a left hand like a knife, and cut around the Olympic Club in San Francisco they will tell you that he is the greatest heavyweight boxer since their old pride, Jim Corbett.

Pound Is Showing Great Form

Ben Pound, the Floridian, was but recently grabbed from Rollins University, of Florida, which gave Rex Beach, the distinguished author, to the Union. Pound has had only a few professional struggles, but he has won them all by the old smackerino. In fact, he has knocked his opponents out so quickly that the boys haven't been able to get a good line on Pound. And what a name for a fighter!

At this time none of these boys means anything. A year from now one or more of them may be cutting all the scrambled ears in the land of waggle.

SAMMY IS PICKED TO WIN

Thrilling Clash Expected When Featherweight Rivals Meet Tonight

By JACK CONWAY

SAMMY FULLER, most colorful featherweight to blaze his way to fame in recent years, will engage in one of those crucial battles when he clashes with Chick Suggs in a ten-round tussle at a Suffolk A.A. show at the New Boston Arena tonight.

Fuller will be in there fighting for the right to meet the winner of the Honeyboy Finnegan-Red Chapman conflict, which will be staged at Rhbeta Field, Brooklyn, on June 8. Fuller has already beaten Chapman, and he is also of the opinion he can upset Honeyboy in a tussle at 126 pounds.

It will be the second meeting between the heavy-hitting Fuller and the elusive Suggs in the past year, and skill enabled him to ride the waves to victory. The new George Dixon is confident he will repeat his triumph tonight.

Suggs' last bout here was against Finnegan, to whom he dropped a decision. He then engaged in a couple of matches in out-of-town rings, after which he took a layoff. He is now going on high once more and will make a determined effort to box his way to the world's featherweight championship.

Despite the fact Suggs has already beaten Fuller once, the spectacular little North Ender will go to the post a betting favorite. This is due to Sammy's great improvement as a boxer during the past year.

Jack Conway

When these sturdy Sons of Swat collided in this city a year ago Suggs' superior speed and skill enabled him to ride the waves to victory. The new George Dixon is confident he will repeat his triumph tonight.

Suggs' last bout here was against Finnegan, to whom he dropped a decision. He then engaged in a couple of matches in out-of-town rings, after which he took a layoff. He is now going on high once more and will make a determined effort to box his way to the world's featherweight championship.

Despite the fact Suggs has already beaten Fuller once, the spectacular little North Ender will go to the post a betting favorite. This is due to Sammy's great improvement as a boxer during the past year.

THEY call Fuller the American Pancho Villa. I understand that T. Milton Goodwin is responsible for this comparison. Goodwin brought Villa to Boston when the latter first came to this country and always maintained that Puncho Pancho was in a class by himself both as a showman and as a box office attraction. T. Milton figures that Fuller equals Villa both as a colorful boxer and also at dragging the cash customers to the Arena.

I have seen half a dozen featherweight champions in action, but none of them have equalled Fuller when it came to punching power, speed and skill to gain the victory.

Fuller has always been fast, while he has also been blessed with a crushing punch.

Sammy has proved repeatedly that he can outpunch any featherweight in the business. He knocked out Johnny Brown, English featherweight champion, in a round. Tony Thomas of New Bedford lasted only seventeen seconds with the American Pancho Villa.

Carl Tremaine, veteran Cleveland featherweight, was sent to the canvas for a nine count in the first round and was fortunate to escape a knockout.

Red Chapman was "out" on his feet in the eighth round of his contest with Fuller at the Arena.

Sammy can punch. Make no mistake of that.

FULLER will have to step along at a terrific clip to catch up with Suggs. In their last tussle, Sammy kept tearing after his negro rival all the time. Although outpointed, Suggs knew he had been in a real scrap.

The signing of Finnegan and Chapman to meet in New York has stirred up new interest in the featherweight class. The victor of the Finnegan-Chapman affair will be obliged to take on the winner of the Fuller-Suggs scrap. The survivor of this series of contests will be recognized as world's featherweight champion.

There will be three eight-round bouts. Andy Martin of the South End will tackle Terry Parker of the North End in the semi-final. Jack Elliot of England will take on Jimmy Armato White of New York, while Charley Manty of New Bedford will oppose Joe Curry of New Haven.

In the sixes, Tommy Clayton of the West End will mingle with Larry Brignolia of Cambridge, while Eddie Zine of the South End will tackle Willie Gaco of the North End.

"HOLD HIM 'JACK!"

Otherwise you would probably not be looking at this picture for "Mike," a Great Dane, took a great dislike to both camera and photographer and needed no urging of "watch the birdie." Sharkey feels that he can defeat any heavyweight in the world and has proven that he fears no rival but he admits that he would cry "quits" if he met "Mike" as a stranger. Who wouldn't?

BOBBY JONES TURNS SCRIBE

Atlanta, April 22 (A.P.).—Bobby Jones, British and American open golf champion, has decided to write a series of articles on golf for a newspaper syndicate, the Atlanta Constitution said today. The name of the syndicate and the amount he is to receive were not given.

The paper said that his decision was prompted by the ruling of the executive committee of the United States Golf Association in New York that his writing would not affect his amateur status in the game, provided he wrote his own articles.

Jones said:

"I don't see why it is of interest to the public if I write for money. There's not the slightest suggestion of professionalism. Many amateurs write under their names and it seems to be a matter for me to decide, merely whether I want to do it or not."

Several years ago friends of the champion learned that a weekly magazine had offered him $25,000 for a series of stories and Jones' statement in turning thumbs down on the offer was widely quoted at the time.

"I am not a writer and I refuse to sell my name for $25,000," he was quoted as saying. "If I were not fairly well known as a golfer, anything I might write would not be worth $10 and I do not intend to trade in on my reputation regardless of whether my standing as an amateur is affected."

DE MAR TO SPEAK AT MELROSE CHURCH SUNDAY

I'll Be Ready by July 4 Declares Dempsey

Los Angeles, April 22 (A.P.).—Jack Dempsey has started ring work at his "comeback" camp in the San Rafaeld Mountains, north of here. He seeks a return fight with Gene Tunney, which he hopes will bring back the heavyweight title he dropped to the big Marine.

Thirty days felling trees, cutting and hauling firewood, hustling rocks for road beds and other labor has stripped 11 pounds of fat off Dempsey's frame. Yesterday he weighed in at 206 pounds.

He stepped into his outdoor ring and raced through two rounds with the weights, a couple more with the punching bag, then two with the 200-pound sand bag and finished off with five minutes of shadow boxing.

Dempsey paused in his workout to volunteer that a return bout with Tunney, probably late this Summer, for a side bet of $5,000 to $10,000 would be his idea of settling the heavyweight championship question.

"I don't need a doctor to tell me I'm feeling better than I ever felt before. I'm confident that I can come back—better than ever," he said.

"For the first time I have got out from under the grinds that must wear down a champion. Now, all I have to do is fight.

"Tunney can do the worrying. If I meet Tunney again I will regain the heavyweight championship. If the fight world thinks I should take on some warming up fights, I'm willing to do it."

Gus Wilson, Dempsey's manager, will leave for New York Saturday on business in connection with Tex Rickard's plans for Dempsey's next fight.

Dempsey believes he will be ready to fight by July 4 but in the event a return match with Tunney is arranged probably will meet the champion on Labor Day. Wilson is expected to line up some sparring partners for Dempsey.

Tunney Says Jack Will Fight Again

By Ed Frayne

New York, April 22.—James Joseph Tunney, the champion of all the leather-pushers, has no use for the lights along pugilistic Broadway today.

He eased into the home village after three months of acting, public speaking and turning down breakfast invitations in the Wild West.

The champion was in good shape and good humor. The old town looked good to him after his long theatrical engagement He was "fed up" on punching a time clock at the stage entrance four times a day, he said.

He also said:

1.—"I think Dempsey will come back. He has kept Gus Wilson and Jerry the Greek on his payroll, and why should he have two trainers unless he is in earnest?

2.—"There is no understanding between me and Tex Rickard that I will meet Dempsey. If Dempsey fights, it will not necessarily be me. Rickard will pick the contender.

Uruguay Team Explains Riot

New York, April 22.—Roughness on the part of Boston players, and partiality by the referee were given by the Uruguay soccer team as causes for the near riot which broke up the match against Boston in Malden, Mass., Tuesday.

The club announced the suspension of Petrone for kicking a Boston player during the game.

In a statement to Jose Richling, Consul-General for Uruguay, the club claimed the rough play it has experienced in this country has resulted in the injuring of so many players that it now has difficulty putting a team on the field.

TILDEN AND HUNTER OFF FOR EUROPE

New York, April 22.—Not since the two immortal tennis Bills, Big Bill Tilden, of Philadelphia, and Little Bill Johnston, of San Francisco, set sail for Australia seven years ago and wrested the Davis Cup from the star Anzac players, Brookes and Patterson, has the visit of such vital importance as that on which Tilden and Francis T. Hunter have embarked.

The tour is a test for Tilden—and so far as Hunter is concerned a test of America's Davis Cup reserve strength.

The final test will come with the present trip Hunter and Tilden will engage in team matches against players of Germany, Holland, Belgium and France. There will also be an exhibition in Belfast, Ireland. The climax of the trip will be the Wimbledon tournament in England in July.

Baseball Off To It's Best Start

New York, April 22 (I.N.S.).—The sixteen major league baseball games drew a total attendance of 478,500 this season, it was estimated today. The last two openers were played yesterday at Pittsburgh and Boston.

The 478,500 figure exceeds the 1926 opening mark of 440,000 by 38,500.

EXETER OUT OF PENN GAMES THIS YEAR

Exeter, N. H., April 22.—For the first time in 15 years Exeter Academy will not be represented by a relay team at the University of Pennsylvania next week.

As the team had a strenuous indoor season and as the material available is none too promising, Coach Carroll has decided to pass up the Penn games and point his charges toward the dual meet with the Harvard freshmen, May 7.

Fighting Red Sox Out to Even Series with Senators Today

By NICK FLATLEY.

THE Red Sox are trying. The fans who watched them in their first home appearance, discovered that fact, even though the Senators won the ball game. Bill Carrigan has his athletes on their toes, and Bill will keep them that way.

The Fenway Park bated under a pack of rules aimed at keeping batting to not out corner pears. the boys could have fooled up, but with Carrigan its something else again. He will see to it that a player hustles, or that player will not be there any more.

Fortune hasn't been kind to Bob Quinn's team thus far in the season, but it surely isn't the one we were willing to wait until Carrigan gets his stuff working. Nick Flatley.

Bill is a plodder, who will not be discouraged by a bad start.

He didn't slide into the cellar in the bench with the senators had gathered enough runs to win a game to ruin any system. He stayed out in front of the whole and finally made a last game of it after trailing like a mule. That's the sport that has been need at the Fenway.

Opening nervousness will be removed when the team gets better afternoon, and the Sox will have a chance to get away to an even start. But it out as the game to the Luke and air conditioned would have romped off with the Friday inaugural.

Charlie Ruffing, who is in good form, will pitch for Quinn today. He was listed for the opener, but the pool breezes gave him a day off.

THE Red Sox can win ball games any time they get going. They haven't been getting much. They are down in the dumps, but the flingers are coming along and should get into real action during this abbreviated home stay. Ted Wingfield might have had a win at that starter, till good enough.

A run batted in by Ira Flagstead Manninger gave the senators two runs in the first chapter. A temporary bobble of a grounder allowed a head open and shot double plant chance in the second, and three runs followed. Five big counters in two innings would decide any ordinary, but recovered quickly.

THAT ball game packed one real thrill, and that furnished by accidental closer, regardless of results. The box score tells the story in the sixth when Ryan popped up with a torrid assumption that the remarkable Blaeve couldn't snare. That disturbed George Munday, who was using the Cleveland Mannager and Bostrock, until the shortstop.

Which puts things up to Tony Rohin, who has just succeeded Union all for the Senators with a last wind whipping out of the park, but Johnny swung from the heels and sent the ball over the fence in the right field bleachers. That was a prodigious blow, when the bases are full. Agent real world. It's one of the wonders of baseball.

BENTON TO FACE DODGERS IN THIRD GAME

Boston, April 22.—You can't hit what you can't see and the Brooklyn fans may be right in that old baseball adage.

As a consequence, Lee Robins, limited to two base hits, suffered their second shutout in three days, and this rubber four-game series at Braves Field.

Hancroft's men go out after the third game this afternoon, possibly with Larry Benton on the mound. Whether does the flinging the Boston team feels certain it Brooklyn is one club it can whip.

It was just a repetition last season, when the Braves won only five out of the nine games at the Robins' Dan Stengel has been booked to pitch for first base for the young Brooklyn infielder beat the nurser.

Then, in the eighth, "Irish" Meusel got a real hit, a line drive to left.

Jess Barnes the former Brave went the route for Brooklyn and held the locals to five hits, while Benton got sufficiently to go the distance before their winning margin.

A crowd about with three aboard to enough all of the afternoon. Brooklyn 000 000 000—0 5 2
Boston 000 000 10x—1 5 0
Batteries—Barnes and Taylor; Benton and Picinich.

RELAY CARNIVAL FOR FITCHBURG

Fitchburg April 22.—Fitchburg High is planning a State interscholastic relay carnival to be held here at Cricker Field sometime between June 11 and June 24.

Permission to stage the meet as the State championship has been asked of Edward J. Holder, State Director of Athletics. If he approves the relay carnival will be declared state championship distance.

The relay will be the 440, the two mile and four mile relays.

Sweetser Decides to Seek Golf Title

New York, April 22.—(A. P.)—Jesse Sweetser, Yale amateur golfer who competed in international tournaments from the Atlantic to the Pacific, will defend his national title at Minneapolis, August 1 to 7, and will have no other objective in golf for the season.

Sweetser has not yet completely recovered from an illness that kept him out of golf for a month, but he is rapidly getting into shape for the national championship at Minneapolis.

HARVARD PLAYS CATHOLIC U.

Washington, April 22.—Harvard, now out of the class of the undefeated nines because of its losses at the hands of Georgetown, meets a stiff foe here today in Catholic University.

The Crimson previous to losing to the Hilltoppers had rung up six consecutive victories.

The strain of trying to keep their slate clean had worn on the nine and it is hoped that a victory today will start another victory streak this afternoon.

The Most Surprised Man Besides Dempsey After Title Bout Was Referee Reilly — Tunney Gets and Gives Advice

OF all the men who entered the Sesqui-Centennial Stadium the night I fought Jack Dempsey, I dare say that none was more certain that I'd go down to defeat than Tommy Reilly, of Wilkesbarre, Pa., who was the referee.

Such a statement sounds strange, almost inexplicable, for it involves prejudgment on the part of a ring official. Yet, here's the story that bolsters it up and includes pre-fight remarks from Reilly that unconsciously expressed his belief that I would lose.

A short time before the call came to go into the ring Reilly and Frank Wener, chairman of the Pennsylvania Athletic commission, came to my dressing room for the purpose of outlining the rules that would govern the battle.

"You will fight under the Pennsylvania State Athletic Commission rules," said Reilly.

"You will protect yourself at all times.

"The kidney punch and the rabbit punch are barred."

Just then I put in and asked:

"How many times are you going to let a man get away with merely a caution for using such punches?"

I had in mind the fact that Dempsey had used both such blows in the title bout's fights and had used them so often that Tony Lad Gaspo refused to shake with him. If I wanted to make sure from the time Dempsey might be able to use his weapons a warning.

Reilly looked at me seemed to get my question. Then he answered:

"This is going to be a championship fight—not a pink tea."

"Very well," I answered. "I understand."

Reilly went on, explaining a few more technical points and I was getting toward a battle readiness when I turned to me and said a parting au l—

"And say, you, listen: I don't want any squawks from the loser."

He started to go. But he also said when I got out of the ring, just a minute. Mr. Reilly, I want to tell you that I will not be responsible for the words you will be saying to me tonight. John F. Dempsey.

By CHESTER HORTON

If you keep the right shoulder up as you swing forward with the three-quarter swing, you will readily discover that the clubhead has a very definite tendency to climb itself. This becomes so real that the shoulder must be guarded against. Otherwise the golfer may really cut under his own swing and foozle the shot.

Western Golf Body May Force Lifting of Ban on Mary Browne

By BILL GRIMES

In swinging the club which was intended to knock Miss Mary K. Browne out of amateur golf championship events, the United States Golf Association collided with a hornets' nest, if the report from the Western Golf Association and the Women's Western Golf Association are authentic.

According to Horace R. Young, who is president of the Western Golf Association, the organization, in spite of the fact that it is affiliated with the U. S. G. A., will not ratify the ban placed upon Miss Browne by the parent body. President Young announced that Miss Browne will be eligible for all championships played under the auspices of the W. G. A.

Because Miss Browne, who is the only woman whatever reached the finals in the recent National championships, voluntarily resigned her amateur status by accepting C. C. Pyle's professional offer, the U. S. G. A. ruled that she will not be entered in amateur tournaments and is in need of the game of golf," and was, therefore, ineligible to participate in any and all amateur golf events.

H. H. Ramsey, who is chairman of the United States Golf Association, states that Miss Browne will be out of golf competition for a period of at least three years, and her reinstatement will depend entirely upon her actions as regards her participation in golf and tennis during that time.

Bill Grimes

W. G. A. BACKED OUIMET.

Although the Western Golf Association has not taken a vote on Miss Browne's case, judging from the attitude of its board in similar circumstances in the past, President Young has in all probability voiced the opinion of that organization, when he refused to allow the U. S. G. A. do the thinking for the W. G. A.

About ten years ago when Francis Ouimet was brought up on the carpet by the United States Golf Association, because he and Joseph Sullivan were operating a sport goods store here, the former United States open and amateur champion was declared a professional. The Western Golf Association refused to ratify that ban.

Upon being informed of the decision of the U. S. G. A. Ouimet gave up his business and it was due to the Western Golf Association that he regained his amateur standing.

A few years ago the U. S. G. A. refused the entry of George Von Elm, the present United States amateur champion, because he was connected with a sporting goods store, or at least that was the story given out at the time. Like Ouimet, Von Elm was restored to the good graces of the powers that be in golf in the country after a short period of ineligibility.

The decision of the United States Golf Association in Miss Browne's case was not wholly unexpected. In all things pertaining to the game the ideals of the U. S. G. A. are a bulwark. England, Bryon, The professional golfers get alms or no association from the governing body. The English custom of allowing pros to ruin until they reach the age of 14, after which they automatically become professionals is in vogue in this country solely because the British authorities hold to such a ruling.

In England a professional in one branch of athletics is barred from amateur competition in all of the other sports. In England, the professional receives alms or no consideration and as far as the U. S. G. A. is concerned is the same feeling exists in this country.

NOW IN BUSINESS.

Because Miss Browne accepted money for playing tennis should have absolutely no bearing on her golf standing, she has done nothing which in anyway would place a ban on her playing in golf championships, according to the fair minded golfers throughout the country. Naturally there are some who favor the English system and therefore believe that the U. S. G. A. has done the proper thing but fortunately for the cause of golf they are very much in the minority.

Miss Browne is now in business in Cleveland, O., and has given up professional tennis. If the Western Golf Association stands behind the action of its president, Howard E. Young, this body may have the power to bring enough pressure to bear on the U. S. G. A. to have Miss Browne reinstated within a short time. The W. G. A. is one of the strongest sectional bodies in the country.

For years Mary Browne's name has been associated with the leaders in the tennis game but she did not come into golf prominence until three years ago, during the Women's National championships at the Rhode Island Country Club, when she defeated Glenna Collett in the semi-finals.

As Miss Browne is one of the most popular women athletes in this country, protests of the U. S. G. A. decision will pour in from every section of this land.

LAWN BIDS TO KEEP TITLE IN BIG TOURNEY

Winning two different national boxing championships in two years is the ambition of Tommy Lawn of New York, present holder of the A. A. U. 125-pound championship.

Lawn, who has grown considerably since a year ago, will compete in the 147 pound class at the National championships to be held at the Boston Arena next Monday and Tuesday night.

The Gotham boy is one of the few of last year's champions who will be on hand for this year's tournament but Lawn was considered one of the most brilliant of last year's performers and no doubt he will go to the post a favorite to gain the title. Hub fans are looking forward with keen interest to a meeting between Lawn and Ray Lopez of Chelsea, considered Boston's main hopeful for a title this year.

With the boxers from Los Angeles, Hollywood and San Francisco already quartered in the A. A. U. interest in the championship event has assumed staggering proportion, in fact it is now feared that the great demand for tickets for the event will overbalance the supply. That's the reason the downtown office of the A. A. U. at Room 2 [illegible] Building on Arch st is doing a land office business these days.

The San Francisco boxers who arrived here yesterday boast of Mike Mallory, a heavyweight who weighs 214 pounds, and stands 6 feet 3 inches tall. He is sure to prove a formidable contender for the title in his class.

Ten entries were received from New York including that of Lawn. It is interesting to record the present entry list which follows:

112 pounds class	20
118 pounds class	12
126 pounds class	13
135 pounds class	16
147 pounds class	22
160 pounds class	12
175 pounds class	7
Heavyweight	8

This means a total of 84 bouts which would result in 70 bouts for the opening night in order the tournament down to the semi-finals and finals for the next night. It is planned to hold only 24 bouts in the final night's boxing to decide the winners.

Never before in the history of the national championships has representation extended over such a vast area. From the four corners of the country, boxers are now rushing to this city for the title events which are sure to go down in amateur history as the greatest championship ring meeting in the last decade.

College boxers also will predominate in the tournament this year expecting to duplicate the feat of a couple of last year's collegian winners.

Annie Oakley Passes to Just Reward

By JACK CONWAY

"ONE-EYED' CONNOLLY, Tammany Young and those other champion gate crashers are welcome to their titles," said the dejected looking Mr. Boston today. "I'm all through with taking line plunges through gates armed with cops, ticket takers and official secretaries," went on the veteran. "I'll say one thing, though. Bob Quinn has more barbed wire entanglements around his outer works than the Germans had in front of their trenches during that little unpleasantness over there.

"An oldtimer like myself should have known better anyhow. You see it was the opening game at Fenway Park with the Red Sox and Senators very much on the job. Those fans who were not out there to give Bill Carrigan the glad hand wanted to say 'hello' to Tris Speaker, Joe Judge or somebody else.

"Funny thing how the boys like to take in any kind of an opening on a free ticket. By the time I blew around at the office all of the passboards had been handed out and the fellow who always can dig up a little something when it is as dry as Sahara just had to see the ball game. And, it's hearted like. I gave him my season pass with Bob Quinn's signature sticking out as big as life.

"'I'll get a ticket, easy,' I argued. All I have to do is to drop in and get a pass from Steve Mahoney, the sporting editor of the Advertiser. I figured that as long as I'm an morning newspaper he would have escaped the early rush of ticket hounds and have a few passes buried away in the shuffle.

"As I approached the sporting department of the Advertiser, four serious looking young men with iron derbies were coming out the door. They took off their hats as I passed them, but not one of them spoke.

Mr. Boston

"THERE was an air of great sadness within the Sporting Department. A dozen members of the League of Free Ticket Hounds were resting themselves on chairs and desks. They looked as though there was not anything more in life to live for.

"'Where's Steve?' I queried, all set to spring for a pass.

"Nobody answered. So I repeated my question.

"Finally one of the sad faced gentlemen forced his head to a sign which hung on the wall. I looked up and read

"ANNIE OAKLEY DEAD!"

That explained everything. I presumed Steve had resigned away from the office to take care of the funeral arrangements. The members were unable to move after having read the sad news.

"I recognized some of them. For years they had been attending ball games, boxing matches, hockey games, football games and what not on the strength of dear old Annie Oakley. Some of them have even been known to ask for wrestling passes, not that they use them, but in the hope they might be able to trade them for a ball or two and save. But, alas, poor old Annie Oakley crashed under the strain. The big rush at the Braves games, the Red Sox opening and the Fuller Sharkey swap must have been too much for her advancing years. And she folded up and died.

"I WAS in a rather embarrassing position myself, but then I really did get a kick out of watching the suffering of the regular members of the League of Free Ticket Hounds. Anyhow I finally did manage to get out to the ball park and managed to battle my way through an army of cops and ticket takers until I got the eye of Jim Price. And the Sox secretary gave the high sign and I was within the park.

"It was zero weather in the press box and so I hadn't a position in the sun in the boxes on the first base side of the grandstand. My friend Happy, the newsboy king, acted as my interference.

"Some kind usher placed us in one box then in another and then in a third as the cash customers paraded in demanding a ticket or a seat. I now realize how those fellows felt, as the fights will never get admission ticket and eventually land in a ringside seat. The heroin again was so great that I collapsed at the end of the fifth inning and hurried to the exit and when I got back to the office somebody told me Tobin had cracked out a home run with the bases loaded.

"I am sending 'One Eyed' Connolly and Tammany Young telegrams today to the effect that they are welcome to their titles.

"Meanwhile I'll send a bunch of flowers out to Annie Oakley. The had the old girl kicked in just as a lot of folks were going to ask me to get them punched duckets for the Fuller Sharkey set up."

Cocoanut Can Be Used in Number of Recipes

By MARTHA LEE

DO you know that cocoanut is one of the most nutritious of our foods? A pound contains as much nutriment as a pound and a half of beef or four and a half pounds of potatoes. It is really both a food and a delicacy that lends itself to a great variety of uses.

The new ever-sealed packages in which the shredded cocoanut comes packed enables you to keep the tender, juicy shred on the kitchen shelf ready for many family delicacies. Here are some recipes chosen from a great number that have been carefully tried and tested and I hope that you will try them.

First come cocoanut one minute recipes:

SPRINKLE shredded cocoanut on cut-up peaches, on chilled canned grapes, on brown betty pudding just before taking from the oven, inside jelly roll before rolling it up, over chocolate cornstarch pudding, over meringues just before browning in the oven, over fried bread and French toast, over dutchess pie just before browning in the oven, into the batter for apple and peach fritters, over ice cream served in cantaloupe halves, over marshmallow covered sultines, (then toast and serve with fruit salad) over chopped raisins, (add lemon juice and use as delicious filling for sandwiches) over plain ice cream, into the center of baked apples, on plain biscuit dough, (this makes a new supper or luncheon bread) on plain cup cake batter, over banana and pineapple fritters and cream muffins, over cornstarch marmalade on saltines, (this makes an afternoon tea delight) over nutmeats for puddings and over all cream pies, on chocolate sauce, serve with plain pudding or vanilla ice cream) on fruit salads to add a novelty, on cream cheese and nut sandwiches, on cinnamon toast, serve with tea,) on soft chocolate frosting before spreading on cake, over coffee cake or sweet buns before baking, on plain puddings for variety, on shredded pineapple before serving.

COCOANUT ORANGE JUMBLES—One-half cup butter, 1 cup sugar, 1 egg, 1/3 cup orange juice, 1 tsp. grated orange rind, 2 cups flour, 2 tsp. baking powder, ½ tsp. salt, 1 cup cocoanut, 1 egg white, additional sugar for tops.

Cream the butter and add sugar slowly, creaming them together. Add egg, orange juice and rind and mix thoroughly. Sift flour, baking powder and salt together and add one-half cup cocoanut. Add to butter mixture. Chill, roll out on slightly floured board and cut with dough cutter.

Put on the top of each with slightly beaten egg white. Sprinkle with remainder of cocoanut and dredge with a little sugar. Bake in moderate oven about 15 minutes. This makes 36 jumbles.

BANANA AND COCOANUT SALAD—Blend half cup cocoanut, 6 bananas, lettuce, mayonnaise.

Spread cocoanut on a flat pan and put in moderate oven until a delicate brown. Peel bananas, scrape with silver knife to remove coarse fiber and cut in thirds, lengthwise and across. Roll each quarter in toasted cocoanut and arrange on crisp lettuce leaves, allowing 2 pieces of banana for each individual service. Top with a spoonful of mayonnaise.

COCOANUT SNOWBALL CAKE—One-half cup butter or other fat, 1 cup sugar, 2 eggs, 2 cups flour, 2 tsp. vanilla, ½ cup milk, ½ tsp. salt, 1 cup cocoanut, 4 egg whites.

Cream the butter and add sugar slowly, creaming them together well. Sift flour, baking powder and salt together and add alternately with the milk. Add yolks and cocoanut and beat until thoroughly mixed.

Fold in stiffly beaten egg whites and pour into greased tube cake pan. Bake in moderate oven about one hour. When cool, cover with chocolate cocoanut frosting or cocoanut water icing.

FRENCH COCOANUT ICING—Two tbsps. butter, 1 cup sifted powdered sugar, 1 egg white, ½ cup cocoanut, ¼ tsp. vanilla.

Cream the butter and add one-half cup of sugar slowly. Add remainder of sugar to stiffly beaten egg whites and combine the mixtures. Add ½ of the cocoanut. Add vanilla and spread on cake. Sprinkle with remainder of the cocoanut.

CURE FOUND FOR "SULKS"

Both good humor and good looks often start with a healthy stomach. Food experts, as well as the Department of Agriculture, tell us that rice is the most easily digested of all cereals. Therefore it is the perfect food for office workers who get little exercise.

They need the strength—and fuel-giving powers of rice, too. Nervousness and ill-humor are often due to lack of nourishing food. Comet Rice, with cream and fruit gives the perfectly balanced ration. Comet Rice is cleaned and machine-packed so that none of its valuable elements need be lost in a preliminary washing. It is sifted so that all the grains are of an even size. This means uniformity in cooking. Send a two-cent stamp for our new recipe booklet. The Comet Rice Company, 57 Laight Street, Dept. 105-D, New York.

Flattery was formerly a vice; it has now become the fashion. —Byron.

...ands and drummers and red-nosed ...apes and tambourines? Will they preach in the streets?

What on earth will they preach about. The everlasting? No, indeed, it is rather a dreary subject.

It's easy enough to be eloquent about what you believe, but how can you stir the hearts of men by something you don't believe?

And what are they going to do with their converts"

Keep 'em out of church and out of school and out of the Y. M. C. A. and the Knights of Columbus I was born. He was tall and dark and had snow-white hair and he wore a cape instead of an overcoat, also a slouch hat. We children used to run past him like deer — especially if it were somewhere near nightfall.

One of my brothers found out it would horrify people if he went to see the atheist, so he used to go every Saturday afternoon. Probably the atheist was bored to death, but we cried a good deal about it, and were very much relieved when the atheist moved to the next town.

It must be rather hard for atheists to make converts. What are they going to say about morals? Where are they going to get their Ten Commandments, applied by the so-called common sense of the ages?

It is just as wrong to steal and murder now as it was when Moses brought the Commandments down from the mountain—isn't it?

But maybe the atheists don't admit that Moses ever did bring the Commandments down at all. Well then, where are they going to get a new set that will be half as good as the old one?

We don't need such a lot of new commandments we already have.

I'm going to watch the papers carefully now to see what the atheistic missionaries are going to teach.

I wonder who they want to Europe? Why didn't they stay in little old America?

CHAPTER II

She picked up the squat brown bottle and poured himself another "snifter" before he said anything. He seemed to be thinking over what Bobbie had said to him.

Then he sat down again, his face so close to hers that she could feel his breath, warm and whiskey-scented, on her cheek.

"Now, let me get this straight," he began slowly, looking her straight in the eye. "You want me to give you the Gretchen part, not because I'm crazy about you and want to do something for you—but because I think you're fitted for it? Is that it?"

Bobbie nodded, smiling nervously. "But I don't think you're fitted for it particularly. I don't think you could do it half so well as—as Monica, for instance," he told her with brutal frankness. "I'm giving it to you as I'd give you any other gift—because it gives me pleasure to make you happy. Because I'm in love with you, and then you tell me I mustn't be in love with you. You tell me I must treat you as a perfect stranger. Excuse me, Bobbie, but I don't see myself falling for that stuff."

"You mean you won't give me the part simply because you think I could not do it well?" Bobbie asked. She wished he wouldn't sit so close to her. She was still deeply interested with him, and his nearness made a quick trembling come into her heart and a lump rise in her throat so that it was hard for her to speak calmly.

"I know you won't do it well—not without a lot of coaching and training," Gus said promptly. "You're a beautiful girl, but you're no actress. You're too stiff, and you haven't any glow and pep on the screen. Even Roy Schultz says that, and you remember that he started out by thinking you were a wonderbeater. You notice he hasn't given you any work lately, don't you?"

Bobbie nodded silently. She had a strong desire to burst into tears. It is very hard to be brave when someone tells you you are a failure—a total flop.

"But I'm perfectly willing to take a chance on you, anyway," Gus said. "I think that if we can work together we can make something out of you—but we can't do it if we aren't in sympathy with each other. We can't do it unless we both play—and I don't know why I should slave over you if you're going to kick me out of your life. A man expects some kind of reward for putting a woman in the place where she wants to be."

"Reward!" echoed Bobbie, puzzled.

"Reward is what I said. You heard me the first time," Gus answered her tersely. "You know I'm in love with you, Bobbie. You know I wouldn't want any other woman in my life, if you'd be there. And you know how I feel about marrying again. You know exactly where I stand on that question."

Bobbie looked down at her polished coral nails, and then up at the handsome, high-colored face so near her own. A selfish face. The face of a man who taught well of himself—who had never denied himself anything he wanted.

"It's not where you stand that counts this time. It's where I stand that matters in this case," she said quietly to him. "And you know where I stand. I love you, and you say you love me. Well, where I come from people get married when they feel that way about each other."

'You've Told Me That Before,' Gus Reminded Bobbie

"Yes, you've told me that before—a good many times." Gus reminded her, and there was sarcasm in the look he gave her. "What do you want me to do? Go out and buy you an engagement diamond or something?"

Bobbie shook her head. The lump in her throat seemed to rise and grow still larger, choking her.

She got up and picked up her worn blue hat from the top of the shining desk. Her chin was held high and her eyes were dry but filled with that starry brilliance that is next door to tears. She crammed the hat down over the deep golden waves of her hair and picked up her handbag.

She tried to say good-bye to him with her eyes as she nodded her head and turned to go.

But, unfortunately, Providence had given Bobbie the kind of eyes that never said anything but "come and get me," no matter what her lips might say—no matter what she might be thinking. "Come hither" eyes, the poets call them.

And so, as she turned away with a little shrug of slender graceful shoulders, she heard Gus take a step towards her. The next minute his hands were on her arms, and he had turned her around facing him.

"Don't be a little fool," he said, his arms around her holding her close to him—crushing her. Her arms were pinned close to her sides, and she tried to throw her head back, so that he couldn't fasten his mouth upon hers.

"No, no, I mustn't let him," she kept thinking. "No matter how much I want him to kiss me, I mustn't let him now. I mustn't be one of these cheap Hollywood women who let men make love to them—and then work them for good parts. I mustn't be like Monica!"

She struggled away from him at last, and the great shining desc was between them.

"No, Gus, this is the end of—everything—for us," she panted. Her cheeks were fiery scarlet and her eyes smouldered above them. Her breast rose and fell with the quick, uneven beating of her heart.

"Yeah, I can see that." Gus smile was more sarcastic than ever. "No engagement—no kisses. That's the way you've got it figured out, isn't it? Gosh, but you're a sharp little bargainer, Bobbie." He flung himself out of the office and Bobbie was left staring at the closed door that he had slammed behind him as he went.

She felt as cheap as cheap could be. How common he had made her feel! As if she were holding her love for the price of an engagement ring!

But, after all, wasn't that what all wise women did? The foolish ones were the ones who loved not wisely, but too well. Who gave all of their love without stint, and received nothing in return but the man's scorn and loss of interest.

"That was what Stella did," she thought, standing there in the quiet room above all the noise and bustle of the courtyard below the windows. She loved Gus to distraction and let him know it. She even killed herself because she loved him, and he didn't even send flowers to her coffin." No, it was the wise woman who put an exorbitantly high price upon her love. The man a man had to pay for the thing he wanted, the more highly he valued it. If you gave it to him he trod it into the dust. That was a man for you.

The door of the office flew open and Bobbie expected to see Gus standing there. But instead of him Roy Schults and Lottie filled the opening.

Roy, It Was Very Plain, Was Laboring Under Excitement

"Here she is, now!" Roy said. It was very plain that he was laboring under some strong excitement. His hands were red, as if he had washed them, and there was a dry flame of color in his cheeks that usually were brown and sallow.

He and Lottie came into the room, and he shut the door carefully.

"You know, Bobbie, I told you when I tell her that you were at Monica's flat last Sunday night," Lottie said, coming close to Bobbie and winking nervously as he looked at her.

He spoke very slowly and disgustedly, as if he wanted her to be sure to get what he said.

"I told her that you and Gus were there for supper and that I dropped in for a few minutes on my way back from the studio about twelve o'clock that night. Isn't that true?"

Bobbie looked from him to Lottie. She hated to be drawn into this battle between husband and wife. And she could see that it was a battle, and a battle royal! Lottie had evidently made up her mind either to end the Monica affair or know the reason why. She had the look of a woman who has reached the end of her rope.

"Roy, I just told Lottie I was at Monica's house only a second," Bobbie said finally. "I told her that Gus was coming for supper, and so I didn't stay. I told her that—and that's the truth. Lottie's been my good friend, and I can't lie to her."

Roy turned to his silent mate.

"Well, Gus will tell you that I dropped in on my way home from the studio, then!" he told her defiantly.

"Gus!" Lottie repeated his name with a sneering little laugh. "Gus—I wouldn't believe Gus if he swore a thing on a stack of seventeen Bibles! No one could believe Gus, and anyone who knows the man yet who wouldn't lie himself black in the face to save another man!"

Her face seemed to quiver all over, and tears came into her eyes as she turned them to Bobbie.

"He wasn't home until 4 o'clock Monday morning," she said. "And I'm going to leave him. I'm going to leave him." She made a movement with her gloved hands as if she were wringing them. "Do you want to come up to my house and help me pack up our things? Jolly's not home?"

"Lottie! You're not going to leave the house. You're not going to do this fool thing!" Roy begged her. "Suppose I did have supper at Monica's. Where was the harm in that?"

He was still talking when Lottie took Bobbie by the arm and led her out of the luxurious office with its deep-piled rug, its shining desk and its bottle of whiskey.

"Supper at that creature's! Not at 4 o'clock in the morning," wailed Lottie when they were in her little open roadster on the road to Beverly Hills. "Hollywood! It gets everybody and it's got Roy! All these men and women hanging around the studios together all day and half the night! No wonder they all lose their heads—"

She began to cry again, softly. "I could lose him to some gorgeous thing like Joan Joyce, and feel that I didn't have a chance to hold him against such beauty," she sobbed. "But to have him fall in love with a cheap little vamp like that Mont." She bit her swollen lips. "I just can't forgive him!"

Bobbie put a comforting arm around her shoulders. "He'll come to his senses, Lottie," she said, but Lottie shook her head fiercely.

"I don't want him when he's come to his senses! I won't have him then!" she declared with a sob. "If he doesn't want me all the time, he can't have me when he comes to his senses. No, I'm through with him for good!"

"And let me tell you something else," she said, after a pause. "Roy never would have started to go out if it hadn't been for Gus hatchloud: You just want to remember that before you trust Gus too far. A man who'll help another man to his wife isn't much of a man. He'll never be true to his own wife."

Bobbie smiled unhappily.

"You needn't worry about me and Gus, Lottie, dear," she answered 'Gus doesn't want me to marry him particularly. I never saw the man a man had to pay for the thing he wanted, the more highly he valued it. If you gave it to him he trod it into the dust. That was a man for you.

Fashion Fads

A Decoy Decolletage is faked by many daytime frocks that have deeply cut yokes that follow the V, deep U and popular square shapes seen in evening gowns. The transparent yokes are usually of white, flesh or nude chiffon or net, although many black afternoon frocks have their yokes of black lace.

The Dove of Peace seems to have hovered over Parisian bootmakers, for they have all agreed upon "dove" gray kidskin as the leather to feature for shoes to accompany the all-gray costumes now in high regard. "Dove" gray is a slatelike, bluish gray. One-strap pumps, with tall spike heels, are among the most popular models.

"What Makes the Home Happy?"---Music

DRAWN BY Nell Brinkley

MUSIC is power. It can soften and charm and inspire. Music is poetry. Music in a home is what a hearth-fire is in a room or water in a landscape—life, interest, cheer.

Music is beauty. And every home needs as much of beauty as it can get into it. No, a little music is not expensive. And when it is to be had in a home it makes young [illegible] friends there. And seeing the young folk [illegible] the older ones happier, too.

how on earth he could have known when she lived.

Right now he was downstairs, waiting!

She remembered perfectly how he looked; his height, his grey eyes and his wide, pleasant smile, the substantial warmth of his hand-clasp.

Her little clock on the dresser told her that it was now noon. Quickly she bathed, and her lithe young body tingled to the rough towel later. Yes, she was going to accept.

This was an occasion for her best silk stockings. Thank Heaven her shoes were new and extravagantly expensive. Slipping into the [illegible] blue suit she was aware, before a mirror, that it fitted her with a trim jauntiness. The dark [illegible] was never so becoming. Women's Simpler Hygiene

More Absorbent—Discards like tissue

By ELLEN V. ROLAND
Registered Nurse

ALL the problems of old-time hygienic ways have recently been ended, largely because of a new way called KOTEX.

Kotex discards as easily as tissue. Thus no laundry, no embarrassment of disposal.

Being 5 times as absorbent as ordinary cotton "pads," you wear lightest gowns and frocks without slightest fear. Deodorizes, too, thus ending all fear of offense.

Obtain at any store without embarrassment simply by saying "KOTEX." Many stores have it already-wrapped on counters, ready for you to pick up and take along without even asking for it.

Try today and you'll never again risk the uncertainty of old ways. Box of 12 costs only a few cents. Be sure you get the genuine. Only Kotex itself is "like" Kotex.

DON'T JUDGE OTHERS AND OVERLOOK YOURSELF

It is easy to laugh at the idiosyncrasies of others and forget our own defects.

Ways of speech, or gesture, and customs that differ from yours are strange to you.

Principles that actuate certain persons are contrary to your ideas of right and you criticise them.

You may just as ridiculous in the eyes of the very ones who laugh at you as they appear ridiculous in your mind

What is poison for another."

Remember that it is often forgotten in passing judgment upon the ways of living.

Those who differ from you are queer, why not look at it from their point of view?

Perhaps the greatest things in this world.

Perhaps those laughing if you understood conditions as they are.

DAILY SHORT STORY

CLARENCE FAIRLEY'S mellow tenor fell silent; his slender, sun-browned hands rested on the piano keys. He turned to his audience.

"I—I—like it," Clarence usually stammered in speech. It was only when singing that his words came sure and true. He was of medium height, and his yellow hair was combed back from a boldly aquiline face. A blond face, such as milk-maids belonged to, before Viking days. The general effect was somewhat impaired, however, when he drew out a perfumed handkerchief and daintily wiped his fingers.

"Beautiful!" Mary Owen beamed at him. "Love among the pines," she quoted, a puzzled look on her face. "I never heard it before.

"Some folks claim that jazz is the only contribution America has made to music," she added humbly. "I don't know whether you'd call that original, but, anyway, you must admit it's been a growing influence—" she hesitated, "ever since—"

"Oh!" Mary Ellen started. "And it made me think of Ed Simms! I wish I—"

"Oh!" said Clarence. The silence grew ominous. The pleasant look evoked by Mary faded from Mary Ellen's face. The blue eyes frowned. She sat between them, through which could be seen the sunny peace of noon in the country. Presently Clarence's ear arrived under the pressure of Mary's gaze. Presently he said:

"——I didn't know——" he turned back to the piano. Apparently he wished to [illegible]

A laugh, masculine and triumphant, interrupted him coming from the porch. Ed Simms himself stepped into the doorway. He was a fitting source for such a laugh, burly and muscular, with pale gray eyes, set in a face whose lower parts were blue from close-shaved thick beard. A man with large hands, hardened by outdoor work.

"Well, you know me now, Clarice—" I mean Clarence!" Simms mimicked. "Nice song. I heard it all." He did not see the queer look in Mary's eyes as he moved to her side and laid a hand on her shoulder. "Glad you know at last that Mary and I are going to get married!"

Mary rose sharply, her mouth opening. But she closed it silently. A look of speculation came into her eyes as she watched Clarence.

"How do you like this, Clarence?" With a grin, Ed Simms caught the girl in his arms and kissed her.

"You—you—" Mary struggled to get free, and her face was so furious that he released her a little uneasily. Mary stood staring, not at him, but at Clarence.

Clarence Fairley's outer elegance may have covered viking blood, after all. The musician's countenance was white with rage. Moving with a sort of sinister glide, he stepped towards Ed Simms, striking almost faster than the eye could follow. But Simms merely turned his head, letting the blow slip harmlessly along his cheek.

Ed crouched, growling, his dark face mottled with anger. His fist shot forward ponderously, and missed. He was the bigger man, and slower.

He missed because Clarence had hailed, apparently [illegible] dumbline in mid-step. Mary watched them stiringly, revolted and yet curiously fascinated by this primeval struggle of brute forces. Not scared at all!

As Ed stepped forward triumphantly for the swing that was to end the affair, Clarence suddenly straightened like a bent whalebone. His fist moved less than two feet, meeting Ed's chin fairly. Ed's look of ferocious triumph faded to a vacant stare. He swayed; fell slowly.

"S-sorry," Clarence apologized, again wiping his hands. "D-didn't matter if he kissed you, of c-course, since you're engaged. But he acted so—so—Oh, well, w-what's the u-use!"

He moved towards the door, forgetful of his hat.

"Clarence," Mary called softly, so softly that he did not hear and went on. She hesitated only an instant; then ran after him. Before he could close the door of his car, she swung in beside him. "Walt, Clarence wait!" she panted.

Clarence blinked at her dazedly She rushed on:

"Oh, Clarence, I can't let you get off like this; we're kindred spirits loving the fine things of life as we do. Ed, you see, well I'd begun to be uncertain. He's always bullied me, and now I know I could never live my life with a bully."

Clarence stared steadfastly at the stretch of road ahead. The girl eyed him shyly. Then, as if mustering all her courage, she said:

"My engagement with Ed's broken, Clarence. Won't you tell me at once again what you were trying to tell me this afternoon?"

Now the car was crawling along at a snail's pace. Clarence had only one hand on the wheel; the other held the fingers of the lovely girl beside him in a determined grip.

MEDBURY SAYS---

By JOHN P. MEDBURY

THIS is the time of the year when thousands of people are doing their Spring cleaning. One woman said her husband was so helpless around the house that she had to go out and commit bigamy in order to get her work done.

POLYGAMY has solved her servant problem.

SHE gets her help at the altar instead of going to an employment bureau.

THE last husband she got was terrible. He was so lazy he wouldn't even wash the windows. He used to put cream on the glass and let the cats lick it off.

SHE came downstairs the other afternoon and found him dusting the furniture with her poodle.

IN an hour and a half he were put three dogs.

HE finally went next door and borrowed their wire-haired fox terrier and scratched all the mahogany tables with him.

HE was too lazy to pick the kindling up from around the fireplace. He took the canary out of the cage and traded it in for a woodpecker.

HE was very tidy. After he ran the carpet sweeper for a few days he wanted to join the automobile club.

HE beat the carpets by letting the St. Bernard wag his tail against it.

HE also polished the hardwood floors by tying waxed rags on the dog's feet and making him chase the cat around the living room.

THIS was all right until he ran out of cats.

THE dining room was the hardest place to clean. He had spilled so much chop suey on the carpet that he made a Chinese rug out of it.

HE had to scrub it by hand. His wife wouldn't let him have the vacuum cleaner because she was using it for drying her hair.

HE didn't mind crawling on the floor but he hated to get housemaid's knee. It's so effeminate.

AFTER he struggled for five days and got the house clean, his wife divorced him.

BUT he had it coming to him. He had worked so hard that he really deserved it.

A WIFE'S MEDITATIONS---BY HELEN ROWLAND

IT seems that nothing so terrible ever happens, that something worse cannot happen next week!

* * *

The first shock of the renaissance of the derby hat has scarcely passed—and now, it is rumored, that men will revive BEARDS, sideburns and whiskers, with the coming of the crooquess!

* * *

But, dear me, if men dont WANT to be kissed, why don't they try

THE BEST JOKE I EVER HEARD

Little Herbert, who discovered a cucumber growing on the vines, ran excitedly into the house exclaiming:

"Mother, mother, we've got a pickle on our squash!"

MRS. D. C. AHERN.

THE BEST JOKE I EVER HEARD

He—Could you marry a man who spends all he makes?"

She—No, but I could love him while it lasted.

WILLIAM F. MURPHY,

Retain the Charm Of Girlhood
A Clear Sweet Skin
Cuticura
Will Help You
Use Cuticura Soap Every Day

SOME more humane way of defending themselves, such as wearing a spiked collar or eating a fresh onion every morning?

Beards may have been derigeur in mild-Victorian days, when a man never kissed a girl until a few days before the wedding, and afterward only on Sundays and holidays, and twice on Christmas day. But in these days of kiss-as-kiss-can, they are a positive menace.

* * *

The very sight of a bearded face closing down on you is enough to make a girl feel weak and faint and creepy. Kissing a man through a beard is about as thrilling as kissing a woman through a crepe veil. It gives you that smothered feeling.

* * *

Worse than that, a beard is absolutely unsanitary now that the average man's life is just one lipstick-flavor after another. No girl could be sure that her lipstick germs were thoroughbreds! Petting and whiskers don't mix!

* * *

The Clean-shaven face has always been symbolic of the clean-cut American man. Nobody COULD be as pure and sweet and noble and innocent as the average man looks just after a clean shave! Why doesn't he want to keep right ON looking that way?

* * *

Not a quarter of an inch on Cleopatra's nose, but a BEARD on Mark Antony's chin would have changed the history of the world!

* * *

Woman's love isn't strong enough to survive when it is smothered by whiskers.

BOY'S BODY WAS COVERED WITH SEVERE ITCHING RASH

Skin now without a blemish

Bethel, Maine, July 13:—"About seven years ago my nephew developed a severe case of skin trouble which looked like eczema. His face, hands and whole body were covered with the trouble and his skin became raw from scratching. Many soaps and ointments were tried without success before Resinol Soap and Ointment were prescribed and used. The first few applications stopped the itching and soon he was entirely healed. He now has the loveliest skin I ever saw and, thanks to Resinol Soap and Ointment, no unsightly blotches mar the beauty of his complexion." (Signed) Vivian M. Eagle, Vernon Street.

NATIONAL POLICIES OF THE HEARST NEWSPAPERS

1. An agreement of English-speaking peoples to preserve peace among themselves and promote the peace of the world.
2. A constitutional amendment to provide for the election of United States Senators in numbers proportionate to the population of each State, but no State to have less than two Senators. A reapportionment of Congressional representation immediately after every census, or in case of the failure of Congress so to act, to make the apportionment automatic at the end of the first Congressional session, the proportion of population for each representative in each case to be that of the existing Congress.
3. A separate Department of the Army, of the Navy and of the Air Forces, all united under a Secretary of National Defense.
4. Federal action to the limit of Federal Government powers to abolish illiteracy among the people of the United States, and the creation of a Secretary of Education.
5. Necessary measures to secure the election of Congress in November and its installation on the 1st of January following, and the inauguration of a President on the 1st of January immediately following his election in November.

A "Tip on the Market"

Unlimited Possibilities of a GUARANTEED Security Selling NOW at Only $12

A GOOD INVESTMENT

For the first time in the history of this newspaper the Boston Evening American departs from established custom by not only directing attention to the announcement in its financial columns of a new issue of securities, but advising every reader to invest in these shares to the very limit of his opportunity.

The Finance Committee of the Boston Council offers 4,200 shares of "Boy Scouts of America, Series 1927," at only $12 per share.

The Boy Scouts of America, as an organization, is engaged in building the character of the boys of America.

From the day when, soon after his twelfth birthday, the boy takes his tenderfoot tests and the scout's oath, the Scouts teach energy, resourcefulness, handicraft, discipline and patriotism.

Buy a $12 share of Boy Scouts of America, Series 1927, and you provide a full year's training in Scouting for one of Boston's 4,200 members.

Here is an investment which simply CANNOT go wrong. It is an investment in the BOYS of America, in the U. S. A., itself!

The motto of the Scouts is, "Do a good turn daily," and they have a saying that "ALL seasons are scouting seasons."

Adult Americans, prosperous, patriotic and PRUDENT, may very wisely make this THEIR scouting season and do themselves and the community a good turn by forwarding their $12 checks to the Boston Boy Scouts, at No. 70 Federal Street, Boston, Mass.

"Going to the Dogs"

But the Country Hasn't Gone and Isn't Going, Despite 150 Years of Prophecy

We regret to announce that the direst of misfortunes is upon us once more. Dr. Bradley Stoughton, a prominent Yale scientist, is its prophet.

He assures us that the collapse of civilization is surely forecast by flippancy, contempt for ideals, contempt for law and authority, irreverence, license masquerading as freedom, pessimism, despondency, nervous afflictions, mental unbalance and suicide. Outside of that, we are more or less all right.

In other words, getting down to the vernacular of the common or garden variety of citizen, the country is "going to the dogs"—thus casting another aspersion on a faithful animal who is man's best friend.

But, again, the public remains calm. It beats all how calm the public can remain under the most distressing circumstances.

That is probably because the country has always been going to the dogs; the oldest inhabitant cannot remember a time when it wasn't. Familiarity with predicted peril breeds contempt, and the public has been familiar with this collapse of civilization ever since it left the cradle.

For a hundred and fifty years the first item of conversation recognized by the infant in its highchair at the breakfast table is the father telling the mother that the country is going to smash. But it hasn't gone and isn't going. Not the worst but the best is yet to come.

Keeping Him Out

No Kaiser Wanted

Socialists in Germany have succeeded in extending the law which would expire this July, and that keeps the former Kaiser out of Germany. That seems cruel. But the Kaiser didn't trust his people after the war was over. He ran. There seems no special reason why his people should trust him now, or let him come back to be the centre of a movement to destroy the republic. When you get rid of a trouble KEEP rid of it. Many would like to resume their comfortable rides on the backs of the German people. The ex-Kaiser would help them.

MEDICINE ADDING YEARS TO LIFE

By DR. FRANK CRANE

THE physicians get a good deal of criticism one way or another. Perhaps some of them deserve it. But as a whole in the art of preserving life the medical profession makes slow but steady progress.

Few people realize what important advancement in the things that pertain to conservation of life has been made since 1900.

During the last twenty-seven years amazing steps have been made.

Before 1900, said Dr. Harrison E. Lowe, the doctors had not heard of insulin or salvarsan. Lavish photographic illustrations of newspapers and books was unknown.

In many cities there were still horse-drawn street cars. The concrete highway, if it existed at all, was a great novelty. Cracked gasoline was unknown.

Coal-tar dyes, pharmaceuticals and many other things made from that black, sticky mass were not made in America.

We did not know that typhoid and cholera came from germs in unclean water and milk. Radium had not been used in the treatment of cancer. There was small development of insecticides and fungicides.

The old chemist, woolly-headed and bespectacled, prowling about in his laboratory was considered a comparatively useless citizen. Now he is understood to contribute to the comforts and safeguards of life.

Security against disease and death have been greatly increased since 1900.

In 1880 the average span of life in New York City was 40 years. In 1926 it was 55 or 56 years, a gain of about 15 years in less than half a century.

In 29 years the infant mortality rate has been cut 60 per cent.

The installation of excellent water systems has eliminated the common cause of sickness and death from typhoid.

Altogether the results obtained by the chemist in his laboratory have had profound effect upon life.

The end is not yet and we may look for further years to be added to the average life as the results of chemical experiments.

Notwithstanding the many amazing inventions of the nineteenth century, the earlier years of the twentieth century show that the age of invention is only well under way.

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By ALINE MICHAELIS

THERE is no loss, however much you grieve for toil that now seems wasted or misspent; ah, cease your doubting and through faith believe those hours will yield you yet a new content! The blooming tree that fell before the wind, the nest of speckled eggs the tempest wrecked, these bear no proof of any Power unkind, sustain no cruel theory men erect. There is no loss, because you cannot read the finished story of creation's task; you cannot gauge the use or weigh the need of any part, nor is it yours to ask. Be sure of this: the toiler reaps some gain with every honest effort which he spends; no force is barren, but each yields again new strength to further new and greater ends.

BOSTON DAY BY DAY

"BIG FINANCIER."

AMONG the really "big" financiers at the Calumet & Hecla, Boston copper, meeting was THOMAS L. CHADBOURNE, famed New York attorney, prominent in the great city's rapid transit affairs. MR. CHADBOURNE stands six feet and four inches, and finds it a novelty to meet a man of his own height.

DIPLOMATIC.

Liquor, liquor, everywhere, but not a drop to drink! Such is the position of SAMUEL W. GEORGE, chief government appraiser at the APPRAISER'S STORES, Atlantic avenue. Though in the appraising service but a few years, it has fallen his lot to receive and guard valuable liquor seizures in addition to placing valuations on foreign goods running into the millions of dollars. Irate passengers claiming low valuations when customs inspectors think differently usually know they have talked with an expert appraiser after they have faced diplomatic SAM.

"Write AT your audience" was the advice given to students of Harvard Business Administration School by R. H. COCHRANE, vice-president of Universal Pictures Corporation, in a recent address. "We deal with an intangible product—entertainment," he added. He told the HARVARD boys not to write down or up, but AT the audience, in case they went in for movie scenarios.

POLYGLOT.

A new Boston restaurant distributes menu cards as an advertisement. "Strictly American Food," the card reads. English beef broth, consomme Julienne and Hamburg steak are the chief items of this American menu. The restaurant is named from a famous Parisian dance hall, and is run by two gentlemen with Teutonic names.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

THE Hallecks have separated.

Going to get a divorce after ten years of happy married life.

Strange, too, they always seemed so happy.

There's not a better housekeeper in town than Esther Halleck. Nothing frivolous about Esther. From the day she married she hasn't had a thought save for her home and family. Serious, thrifty, efficient—surely Esther isn't to blame for the divorce.

But it's also hard to see where Dan's at fault.

He has worked just as hard as Esther. Gave up all his old amusements and most of his old friends when he married. Took in extra work at night so they'd get on faster. Never looked at another woman. He certainly seemed the model husband.

Yet now, after ten years of married life, these two people have suddenly turned against each other. Haven't spoken a civil word to each other for six months. Every trifle starts a row. People avoid their home—they hate to be involved in the trouble.

But what started it?

Why do so many marriages fizzle out this way after seven or eight or ten years of loyalty and harmony?

Why does love so suddenly turn to hate?

Yet does love turn to hate? Or does it wither because we have never understood its nature, and have abused it?

John Galsworthy, in "The Forsythe Saga," says something deeply wise about love.

"In the security bred of many harmless marriages," he writes, "it has been forgotten that Love is not a hothouse flower, but a wild plant, born of a wet night, born of an hour of sunshine, sprung from wild seed, blown along the road by a wild wind. A wild plant that, when it blooms by chance within the hedge of our gardens, we call a flower, and when it blooms outside we call a weed; but flower or weed, whose scent is always wild."

A Wild Flower—

Yes, we know that love is wild when first it comes to us.

Life becomes a sweet, almost intolerable, madness then! Each twig bides magic, each trail leads to adventure. We think with scorn of the humdrum current of our days before love came. We plan so blithely for great, high spirited days ahead—reckless days—colorful days—days that will make life worth the living.

And then we are married.

And "settle down."

And we, who were once two adventurers, faring over the hilltop, now huddle together in the dangerous intimacy of married life.

We begin to pry into each other's thoughts, to criticise each other's aims, to hamper and meddle and impose.

We grow cautious.

We count our pennies and emotions.

We grow afraid of risks and too dull to enjoy adventures.

We take out life insurance and accident and burglar protection. But all the time we are protecting our money and our property—our jobs and our reputations. Love is slipping, slipping away—

Love is dying in the sterile soil of our neat gardening—

We have lost the wild, sweet flower!
